ADVANTAGES OF THE SOCIETY.

ALL the PROFITS belong to the Members.

It is a COLONIAL INSTITUTION, on the model of the most successful British offices; while from the much higher rate of interest it obtains on its investments, more profitable returns are secured to its members than the best European offices can afford. Thus, at the Investigation of March, 1854, all policies then entitled to participate were increased by Bonus Additions averaging considerably more than three per cent. per annum on the sum assured, or about THREE TIMES those secured by the most liberal British Joint-stock companies.

BONUSES may be applied to the extinction of future premiums, or their value in cash may be handed to the member.

SURRENDERS accepted on equitable terms.

PREMIUMS payable yearly, half-yearly, or quarterly.

LOANS on policies on favourable terms.

CLAIMS payable three months after proof of death.

ALL ITS POLICIES are protected against the operation of the Insolvent Laws, after a certain term, on a gradually increasing scale.

POLICIES effected by married women are protected against the debts and control of their husbands.

THE FAMILIES OF SMALL ASSURERS are saved the expense of letters of administration.

PROSPECTUSES, forms of proposal, and every information may be obtained from any of its agents in New South Wales, and in the other Colonies, or at the Principal Office. ROBERT THOMSON, actuary and secretary, Hunter-street. February 15th, 1859.

TO THE GENTRY, CLERGY, and inhabitants throughout Sydney and New South Wales.

S. BENNETT and CO. have much pleasure in announcing the arrival by the C. E. Tilton of their annual supply of the finest BLACK TEA of this season's growth. S. B. and CO. have no hesitation in saying that these teas are quite equal, and if possible superior, to their celebrated shipment last year by the Othona, which has gained them the wide-spread notoriety of vending the finest teas ever imported into New South Wales. Their assertions will be fully borne out by all who have tested the qualities of these celebrated teas. From those who have not yet done so, S. B. and Co. would respectfully solicit a trial, feeling confident that they will find it to be the most economical as well as the most agreeable.

For the convenience of families, S. B. and Co. have imported the same quality in boxes or quarter-chests, which will enable those residing at a distance to have an original package forwarded. As there are only a limited quantity of these, an early call is solicited.

S. BENNETT and CO. return their sincere thanks for the extensive patronage and encouragement they have received in providing for the inhabitants of New South Wales a description of tea which before rarely, if ever, found its way into this market.

JAMES would also remind the public of his superior Coffee, which is prepared from the best berry obtainable in these markets, and for purity, strength, and flavour, is inferior to none, being roasted and ground on the premises. W. J. can, with confidence, recommend it to the public. Best Kiama and Wollongong butter always to be obtained at the establishment of W. JAMES, Tea Warehouse, Botany Road, Redfern.

HOWARD'S PLOUGHS.—JAMES and FREDERICK HOWARD, Britannia Iron Works, Bedford, England, have received from the Royal Agricultural Society of England more first prizes for ploughs, harrows, and horse rakes, than any other maker. Their champion ploughs are now made almost entirely of wrought iron; in this, as well as other respects, they are therefore thoroughly adapted for Colonial purposes, and are constructed so as to require but little space in packing. Many thousands of their implements are exported every year to all parts of the world: the requirements of the different colonies are consequently well understood. JAMES and FREDERICK HOWARD are not only the largest manufacturers in the world, of ploughs, but also of iron harrows, horse rakes, and steam ploughs or cultivators. Illustrated catalogues of the above, and further information can be obtained on application to

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Friday, 26th October.

THE news from the various gold-fields continues to be conflicting, but upon the whole encouraging. The diggings at Lambing Flat, in particular, seem to be turning out very well. At Kiandra, the weather has still been sufficiently inclement to render it almost impossible to work the bed claims. There are plenty of men now on the gold-field to try it fairly, and while on the one hand, we would caution working men against giving up certain employment, in town or country, in the hope of making a rapid fortune with the pick, shovel and cradle, we would equally caution them against attaching too much weight to the accounts given by many of the returned diggers. Numbers of these have gone to the "Snowy" without any such provision which is indispensable for a gold seeking campaign in that quarter, relying, in fact, upon finding some of the precious metal at once. Their extravagant hopes of immediate success are succeeded by an equally extravagant despondency. No man ought to go to the Alps who has not the wherewithal to meet disappointments for a time, without being thereby rendered destitute, and who has not, at the same time, "pluck" enough to give thing a fair trial.

The miners of Kiandra have been demanding an extension of their claims, and although the local commissioners had already about doubled the ordinary size, a still larger extension—in fact another doubling of area—has been applied for. This application seems to have been made direct to the Premier, instead of through the commissioners, and there seems also to have been a reprehensible neglect of what was due to the latter, for instead of a reference to them, there was a telegraphic message to Mr. Charles Cowper, junior, a resident J.P., and the son of a Cabinet Minister, to the effect that the claim of the miners would be conceded. Mr. Cowper made this public, thus casting some indirect slur upon the commissioners, by making it appear that they were not, even for the purposes of their own district and their own duties, so much in the confidence of the Government as the individual J.P. alluded to.

The Legislative Council and Assembly have both been pretty busy. The bill for remodelling the constitution of the first-named body has been introduced there, and has been partially debated, with very little apparent chance of being carried through without most material alterations, if not a total change in principles. The bill for the immediate abolition of the gold duty has been again cast over for a week, but without discussion. In fact, the Council has clearly determined not to let this bill pass until they see plainly the fate of the Colonial Treasurer's new financial scheme.

The Land Bills are being battled through in the Assembly, and, as yet, Ministers have had the best of it.

Mr. Henry Parkes has brought a bill into the Assembly, for the relief of the Sydney Corporation from its pecuniary difficulties. He proposes to give the Municipal Council a power of taxing Government property and unimproved land. Also, to give it the power of reclaiming soil at the head of Darling Harbour, and to vest in it certain other lands.

On the motion of the same member, a special committee has been granted to enquire into the state of gaols and penal establishments in the city of Sydney and county of Cumberland.

The dispute between the Bishop of Sydney and the Rev. Mr. King has been carried into the Supreme Court. The Bishop having, as we have before mentioned, treated his exclusion from St. Andrew's by the reverend incumbent an act of grave canonical disobedience, and has caused the citation of the latter before a Court or Commission, to "undergo the visitation" of the Diocesan (the Bishop himself). Mr. King has applied to the Supreme Court to restrain by prohibition the action of this tribunal. The case has been but partially argued as yet, and pending a decision of it, the sitting of the Visitorial Court or Commission has been adjourned.

The journeymen bakers are still agitating for the establishment of the system of working by day, and for shorter hours, and for the abolition of Sunday work. There was a general meeting of them upon this subject on Saturday evening last.

A beautifully executed uniform rapier has been manufactured in Sydney for the Belgian Consul at Queensland.

The Ipswich racing officials have advertised their Champion race, with stakes of 100 sovereigns each, and 1000 guineas added. The whole of the money, we learn, has been collected, and the day of contest is fixed for the 28th May next. The particulars as to date of nomination, acceptance, &c., are to be made known on the 1st proximo. The race is to be run under the auspices of the North Australian Jockey Club, assisted of course by stewards chosen to represent the other colonies.

A man named Michael Bruce has been stabbed at the Upper Castlereagh, by one Frank Dusse, and has died of his wounds.

Mr. H. A. Severn delivered a lecture on Monday evening, at St. Leonard's School of Arts, on the principle of gold coinage as carried on at the Sydney Mint.

On the same evening the fourth of a series of lectures on Sabbath Observance was delivered at the Temperance Hall, by the Rev. S. C. Kent.

On the same evening, also, there was a lecture on "the Life and Writings of Cervantes," by Mr. R. Flanagan, before the Catholic Young Men's Society, at the School-room of the Sacred Heart.

Public meetings of the Sydney East Auxiliary of the Australasian Wesleyan Missionary Society, have been held during the week.

A woman, named Rose Golden or Gorden, seventy years of age, has died suddenly from the combined effects of old age, disease, and neglect, aided by intemperate habits. She lived with an old man named Pike, as intemperate as herself, at a wretched house in Linden-lane, off Parramatta-street.

Some malicious scoundrel has set fire to a stack of hay belonging to the Rev. J. Wilson, of Pitt Town. A reward of £70 has been offered for the apprehension of the delinquent. Some time ago, the reverend gentleman's plough handles were sawn off, and many of his farming implements destroyed, probably by the same villanous hands.

A sawyer named Matthew Jones has been found murdered near Windsor. He had evidently been killed by a blow on the back of the head with an axe. A Portuguese named Joses Xavier Pereira, who was the deceased's mate, and was the last person seen in his company, is in custody on suspicion of being the murderer.

The volunteer movement is progressing favourably in all directions, and the various local corps are being rapidly organised.

At a recent inspection of Sydney Volunteer Rifles in the Domain two members of the corps appeared in an undress uniform more aristocratic and costly in its character than that adopted by the corps, and worn by the rest of its members. This has been generally, and very justly, condemned. Any affectation of superiority or display of superior wealth on the part of individual members of a body, where all are supposed to meet upon perfectly equal terms, must necessarily have a disorganising tendency.

A daring and nearly successful attempt at prison-breaking has been made in the Armidale lock-up by a man named Joseph Woods, who had been brought from Tamworth on four several charges of cattle-stealing. He endeavoured to break through the walls, but was detected in time.

The Cattle-stealing Association has proposed the introduction of a new and more stringent Impounding Act, and the proposition has been favourably received by the Government.

Mr. Frank Howson has given the first of a series of operatic concerts at the Temperance Hall, with great success,

Two infants, named respectively James Charles Outhwaite (aged five weeks), and Sarah Rebecca Roberts (aged seven months), have died suddenly from natural causes. The death of the last named infant was plainly accelerated by the inability of the parents, through sheer poverty, to provide the necessary medical aid and comforts for their offspring.

A man named James Bromley, lately in the employment of Mr. W. Haydon, of Tamworth, as a teamster, decamped with the money for certain goods which he had delivered, leaving his dray and horses in the bush.

The Rev. R. Hartley has delivered an address before the Balmain Total Abstinence Society, in advocacy of those principles which the society has been organised to promote.

Captain Martindale has resigned his under-secretaryship and other appointments in the Department of Public Works.

A man named William Ellis, aged thirty-five, has died from effusion on the brain; the result of long continued habits of intemperance.

A sawyer, named William Brown, has died at Morpeth, from the absorption of animal poison received in cutting up the carcase of a cow which had died a natural death, and which he had purchased as food for pigs. A public meeting was subsequently held to consult as to the danger to human life which might result from the sale of animals which had died from the Cumberland disease. Nothing very definite was determined. It was admitted that the owner of the cow (a Mrs. Bird) was not aware of its having the disease in question, but that the animal had died soon after drinking from a waterhole in which the bodies of some other animals had been thrown. It stated that other animals which had drank at the same place had also died. The police magistrate, with the consent of the owner of the property, ordered this hole to be filled up.

The Rev. G. H. Moreton repeated his lecture on "Edward VI." before the members of the Auxiliary Church Society, at Randwick, on Thursday evening.

The prisoner, George Swan, who was at the last Maitland Assizes convicted and sentenced to death for the wilful murder of John Barton, at Stony Creek, has been awarded the lesser punishment of penal servitude for life, the first three years in irons. It would be more satisfactory if the reasons for this remission were made public. According to the published reports of this case, as shown on the trial, it was one of a deliberate and cold-blooded assassination for the purpose of robbery. The evidence was indeed circumstantial, but the chain seemed very complete, and any ordinary observer would be inclined to say that if there ever was a case in which a conviction for homicide upon circumstantial evidence should be followed by the extreme penalty of the law this was a case of that nature.

A tea-party and musical soiree, in aid of the District Church fund was held at St. Charles' Catholic school-room, Waverley, on Wednesday evening. On the following day, all the children of the neighbourhood who could be got together, without distinction of creed, were entertained with tea, cake, fruit, &c.

At the Court of Quarter Sessions on Friday, a man named James Moore was convicted of keeping certain houses of ill fame, in Queen's-place, and was sentenced to pay a fine of £25 to the Queen, and to be imprisoned in Parramatta gaol for twelve months. The Hon. Edward Hunt, a member of the Legislative Council, was the owner of these houses, and Moore was his agent for letting them and collecting the rents. The evidence was very distinct as to Moore's knowledge of the infamous purposes for which these houses had been taken, but Mr. Hunt positively denied that he knew it.

A woman named Jemima Smith, twenty-five years of age, was yesterday committed for trial, on the verdict of the coromer's jury, for the wilful murder of her illegitimate infant, by the withholding of all nourishment.

Mr. Pittard delivered his tenth lecture upon Zoology on Wednesday.

A race for £50 a side has been appointed to come off to-morrow at Ashfield between the well-known horse Poor Man's Friend, and an animal named Black Tommy, the property of a Mr. Baker.

WOOL.—We are informed that several lots of the new clip have been sold privately at a decline of 1½d. per lb. on the prices realised last year. The quantity of wool, however, as yet come to hand is so small that the market value cannot be said to have been fairly tested, but it is anticipated as buyers are very cautious that a decline of 1½d. to 2d. per lb. on last year's rates will have to be submitted to in order to effect sales.

Business during the week has been very quiet, and there is consequently scarcely any change to notice in our markets. The failure of the following small foreign houses have, during the last two or three days, been announced, viz., Messrs. Goldsmith and Haarburger, Mr. James Ganz, and Messrs. Byng and Co. Their liabilities, however, are not large, and altogether do not amount to more than £20,000. We subjoin the latest report of the state of our markets :—

FLOUR.—The market is quiet, and prices remain unaltered. The millers' quotations are still for fine flour, £20 per ton ; seconds, £18 per ton. Wheat is quoted at 7s. to 7s. 6d. per bushel.

LIQUIDS.—Ale in bulk is in greater request, and first brands are worth from £7 5s. to £7 10s. per hogshead. Porter in bulk is nominally the same. Bottled ale and porter, if sound, command full rates. Brandy,—Martell's,— is quoted at 11s. to 11s. 3d., but we have not heard of any sales at these rates. Some shipments from Melbourne have, we understand, been quitted below these rates, but for direct shipments holders are unwilling to sell at any decline on the prices quoted. Rum is not quite so firm, and 30 o.p. cannot be quoted higher than 4s. 2d. to 4s. 4½d ; 10 o.p. has been quitted at 3s. 8d. Geneva is without any alteration. In wines, we have no transactions to record, prices remain nominally the same.

TEAS.—There has been but little doing in teas this week, and buyers are not anxious to operate at present prices. Congous are nominally quoted at from £7 to £9 10s. per chest.

SUGARS are not quite so firm, and prices have given way about 10s. per ton. Mauritius sugars were sold by auction during the week at from £33 10s. to £41 10s. per ton.

RICE.—Notwithstanding the large quantity to hand by the Joshua, holders are still asking £17 10s. to £18 for the best Patna, but at these rates but few sales have been made.

COFFEE continues scarce. Manila : There is none in the market at present, but a small parcel is shortly expected to arrive. Plantation is quoted at from 15d. to 15½d. per lb. in bond.

IN OILMEN'S STORES, SALT, DRIED FRUITS, &c., we have no alteration to notice, and prices are nominally the same.

Messrs. Durham and Irwin held their usual weekly produce sale, this day. Wool : Eight bales were catalogued for this day. The following were the rates obtained :—Scoured skin, at 22½d. ; fleece (New Zealand), at from 15½d. to 17½d ; mixed, at 10½d. ; greasy, at 12d. per lb. Sheepskins : Felmongers purchased freely. About 2500 were sold at prices ranging from 7½d. to 9½d. Pelts, 2½d. per lb. Tallow : Fourteen casks were offered, of which only four were sold, at from 20s. to 41s. 9d. per cwt. Hides : There is a good demand for heavy hides, and prices are well maintained ; the highest figure obtained this day was 13s. 6d. Over 800 were sold at from 7s. 6d. to 13s. 6d. Calfskins, at 3s. Horns, at from 6s. to 22s. per 100. Hair, at 5d. per lb. Shankbones, at £4 2s. 6d. per ton. Mess beef, at £2 per tierce.

From Melbourne we have news to the 22nd instant. From the Argus of that date we take the following :—

The money market has been very quiet. Two more of the bank quarterly average statements have made their appearance in the Gazette, without presenting any feature of special interest. The imports and exports of specie have been unimportant ; £5000 have been despatched to Hongkong, and £28 000 have been received from Sydney. Money has been a little more difficult. The rates for money outside the banks remain from 8 to 12 per cent. for advance on mortgage.

The selling rates of exchange on England are quoted at par for sixty days' sight for large amounts, and one per cent. premium for thirty days' sight for bills under £50.

The share market has been quiet. Fluctuations have been few, and not very great. Transfers have been numerous, but not in large parcels. Sales are quoted at Melbourne and Hobson's Bay Railway, at from £33 to £35 ; Melbourne and Suburban, at £8 10s ; Bank of Victoria, at from £34 to £35 ; Colonial Bank of Australasia, at £6 7s 6d to £6 8s 6d ; National Bank of Australasia, at £3 15s ; Bendigo Waterworks have changed hands at from £1 5s to £1 5s ; Melbourne Gas and Coke Company, at 15 per cent. premium ; Australasian Insurance, at £1 5s.

In the import market there has been a steady business doing, but not a very extensive one. The export market has been rendered more animated by the opening sales of this season's clip of wool. On Wednesday 1612 bales were offered, and 1566 bales disposed of at prices which exhibit a confident feeling on the part of buyers. Greasy wools realised from 9½d to 13½d ; fleece, from 21½d to 24½d ; and scoured, 21d to 29d per lb. The Customs returns for the week ending the 13th give the imports at the port of Melbourne at the declared value of £291,004, and the exports at £333,713, the balance being in favour of the latter to the sum of £42,636.

Our dates from Tasmania are to the 19th instant. We subjoin the latest market reports :—

HOBART TOWN.—Very little is doing in the wheat market, but prices continue steady at 5s 3d to 5s 6d per bushel. Oats and barley are quoted as before, but are scarcely even pushed for.

Potatoes are in brisk demand, and prices are still tending upwards, sales having been made to-day at £11 to £11 10s per ton. Hay has undergone no change. There is a steady local demand for colonial flour, and prices are firm at £20 per ton. Chilian is selling at £18. Bran, 1s 6d to 1s 7d per bushel. At the sale by auction this morning of the cargo of the India, from Manila, which was conducted by Messrs. Burn and Co., the bidding for the spars was anything but spirited, and a small quantity only was disposed of, the greater portion being withdrawn. About 114 bags coffee were sold, which realised 111½d.—Mercury, October 18.

LAUNCESTON.—The markets are rather dull. Flour may still be quoted at from £16 to £17. Wheat is a shade lower, and will not fetch more than 7s 6d ; oats, 3s 6d to 3s 9d, a prime sample changed hands yesterday at 3s 8d ; hay £5, potatoes remain at £11, bags in ; butter still nominal, flour, by the bag, 30s.

STOCK AND SHARE LISTS.

[BARTON AND SONS]

OUR sales this week have been confined to Bank shares, in which we have done a good business at full rates. In New South Wales at £37, including the dividend just declared, and in Joint Stock, at £11 5s. per share. Capital is freely offered for investment at the current rates, but securities are scarce.

The Bank of New South Wales had the meeting on the 24th, when the dividend for the half-year was declared at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum, as before but upon the increased capital of £750,000, leaving £3361 at credit of profit and loss, and a reserve of £208,372.

The New South Wales Marine Assurance Company had their half-yearly meeting also on the 24th. The dividend was declared at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum upon the capital of £15,000, leaving £3082 as profits accumulated.

Loans upon the security of shares and real estate, are negotiated at from 7 to 10 per cent. per annum.

26th October.

[LEMON AND CAPE]

We report a comparatively quiet week in our share market. Bank stock has not been sought after, with the exception of Bank New South Wales shares, for which we had some enquiry previous to the half-yearly meeting on the 24th instant.

The New South Wales Marine Assurance Company held their half-yearly meeting on Wednesday ; a dividend at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum was declared, leaving, with balance from previous half-year, £3188 14s at credit of profit and loss account. The Bank of New South Wales half-yearly meeting took place on Wednesday ; a dividend at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum was declared, and a balance of £3361 16s 1d carried forward to next half-year. The reserve fund still stands at £208,372 11s 9d, on a capital of £750,0 0.

Our sales during the week have been in—Australasian Steam Navigation Company, £18 5s ; Clarence and Richmond River Steam, £10 10s ; Australian Gas Company, £3 paid, £8 5s ; Newcastle Coal and Copper, £18 ; New South Wales Government Debentures, 1876, 100 and interest.

Pitt-street, Sydney, 26th October.

[J. MULLENS]

The share market has been dull this week, and I have but a moderate business to report. The Wallsend Coal Company's shares have taken a start, and been enquired for at par, in anticipation of the speedy commencement of operations, but there are no shares offering in the market.

The half-yearly meeting of the Bank of New South Wales was held on the 24th instant, and a dividend of 15 per cent. per annum declared. The reserve fund remains without increase, £205,000, and the balance of profit carried over to the next half-year is £3361.

The New South Wales Marine Insurance Company held their half-yearly meeting on the same day, and a dividend of 12½ per cent per annum was declared, being a decline on the last payment, which was at the rate of 15 per cent. The reserve fund remains at £8000, and the balance of profit carried forward, after payment of the dividend, is £1188 14s. 6d.

No sales during the week have been in New South Government Debentures, Interminable, at par, with interest added.

Sydney, 26th October.

STOCK AND STATION CIRCULARS.

[RAYMOND AND CO.]

FAT CATTLE.—From the increased supply the latter end of this week prices have slightly receded, and we anticipate a further decline. We quote them—First quality, from £4 16s to £5 ; second quality, £3 15s to £4 5s.

FAT SHEEP.—Market fully supplied, and prices have again fallen. First quality, with fleece on, sold at 16s to 17s 6d ; shorn, 13s 6d to 14s 6d.

STORE CATTLE.—The principal demand for this class of stock is for well-bred cows and heifers, which realise fair rates. The demand from the south has entirely seized upon sporting, quite well-bred store cattle, mixed sexes, delivered on the station, at from 40s to 45s ; all bullocks, 60s ; deliverable at Maiden's Punt, mixed sexes, 60s to 65s ; all bullocks, 75s to 80s.

STORE SHEEP.—Several inquiries for young breeding ewes, deliverable after shearing ; also for large framed wethers. For ewes, from 10s 6d to 12s ; wethers, at 10s 6d to 11s 6d.

STATIONS.—First-class pastoral properties, lightly stocked, are in demand, but from the season very few offering.

HORSES.—Stout saddle and strong upstanding colts, fit for harness, are very scarce, and much inquired after.

WOOL.—The new clip has been unusually late in coming in this year. Few bales only have arrived, and we cannot yet name prices likely to rule for the ensuing season.

TALLOW.—Not so much inquired for, which makes the market less firm. We quote best tallow from £36 to £41 ; mutton, £42 to £46 ; station, £36 to £41.

HIDES.—The lots offered this week were of very inferior quality ; the best only realised 13s. We quote them from 3s 6d to 13s.

October 26th.

[R. BORRIE]

STATIONS.—Fattening runs are more enquired for than any description of property. Some stations are under offer at from £4 to £5 10s. per head. Unstocked runs, if good, are much looked for.

FAT CATTLE.—There is a large supply to hand, more than is actually required for immediate consumption. The retail prices having receded, the carcase butchers are holding back, and are not giving over £5 10s, excepting it be for anything very prime, when £6 to £7 would not prevent a sale. A mob of Mr. White's fetched, about £4 10s, and those of Mr. Cope, £5 per head.

FAT SHEEP.—The same remarks as to quantity and cause of depreciation in price may here apply. Some of Buckland's wethers, fine sheep, sold to be 50 lbs. with the fleece on, have been sold as low as 16s. 9d.

STORE CATTLE.—Considerable lower rates are talked of as likely to exist during the next season.

STORE SHEEP.—My advices from Queensland report maiden ewes as at a very high figure, namely, 16s. per head. This cannot last, as no one can afford to pay such rates. Good store wethers in New South Wales are selling at from 10s. to 11s. each ; shorn and like ewes, 11s to 12s each.

[MR. BREWSTER.]

STATIONS.—There is a good demand for lightly stocked sheep stations, and unoccupied country in Queensland. Pastoral properties in New South Wales are attracting attention, but few sales are expected to take place till after shearing.

FROM A CATTLE.—Breeding cattle are more in demand than any other kind, and enquiries for well-bred store lots are also more numerous than they have been for some time back. Buyers, however, demand lower prices and more liberal terms than sellers feel disposed to accede to. Quotations nominal.

STORE SHEEP.—The demand for good breeding ewes and mixed lots is considerable, and large numbers could be disposed of from 8s to 12s. No transactions to report in store wethers, which, however, are enquired for at 10s to 11s.

FAT STOCK remain without alteration, say for cattle £5 to £6 ; sheep, 15s to 16s each.

Sydney, 26th October.

PRODUCE CIRCULARS.

[MORT AND CO.]

WOOL.—The quantity of the new clip at present to hand for auction sale is insufficient to determine—even hardly to indicate how prices are likely to rule during the ensuing season ; and although, with the exception of four bales withdrawn, we disposed of the whole of the lots catalogued for our weekly sale this day, at about the opening rates of last year, still quotations must be reported as nominal.

SKIRTINGS are hardly so firm this week. There was a fair supply, but fellmongers were not as eager to purchase, in consequence of the greasy wool now arriving.

TALLOW.—The demand not equal to last week, and prices have given way a little ; all offered, however, was sold, with the exception of one parcel of candle tallow, withdrawn for a higher figure.

HIDES.—Only a small quantity offered, and mostly of inferior quality ; two parcels of good quality realised 13s. 3d. and 13s.

FAT CATTLE.—The market well supplied ; really good worth £6.

FAT SHEEP.—Full of middling and inferior. A few small lots of wethers, with full fleeces, were sold by auction at 18s. 6d. ; really good wethers would command top prices.

PAYMENTS TO LONDON :—

[DURHAM AND IRWIN]

WOOL.—Although no improvement in price can be noted in this market, yet all lots appearing have been placed at auction at satisfactory rates, the non-arrival of the early portion of the new clip is much felt, as purchasers are anxious that their shipments should meet the February sales. Only eight bales were sold this day, as follows, viz., W8, 5 bales (New Zealand) fleece, at 17½d ; WW, 1 bale (ditto) ditto, at 13½d ; H, 1 bale of scoured, at 22½d ; DM, 1 bale mixed, at 10½d : 1 pocket greasy, at 12d per lb.

SHEEPSKINS.—Prices continue firm, all offered sold readily at last week's rates, but a decline may be looked for on the arrival of any quantity of greasy wool ; about 2500 were sold this day, at the following rates, viz. :—1 lot at 8½d. 1

The Glenelg Lights.—Captain Stewart, of the Blackwall, has addressed the following letter to the Register on the two lights exhibited on Glenelg Pier:—"I have to express my decided disapprobation of the two lights shown on Glenelg Pier. Coming as a stranger to your port, I was obliged to anchor the Blackwall midway between Glenelg and the Lightship, not being able to distinguish the one from the other, the soundings on the Admiralty chart leading me to expect that the Lightship was to the northward of the light (it being distinctly stated in the chart that the light-vessel is the only double light. Had this been the case, and had I not anchored, I should have been speedily on the mud flats."

Vessel Spoken by the Blackwall.—New York Packet or Homer, from New York, for Sydney, sixty days out, latitude 34°57 S., longitude 17°57 W.—South Australian Register, October 16.

The Dominick Daly, from Mauritius, Captain Jury, with a cargo of sugar, arrived yesterday.—Portland Guardian, October 17.

Heinke's Diving Apparatus.—An interesting experiment is in progress for recovering treasure from the 36-gun frigate Lutine, which foundered off Terschelling, on the Dutch coast, sixty-one years ago. The Lutine had been captured by the British from the French, and had been selected to convey an amount of specie, supposed, according to some statements, to be nearly £2,000,000, partly for the pay of British and Russian troops, and partly for the assistance of Hamburg merchants. During the past thirty or forty years, various attempts have been made to recover the treasure, and about £50,000 had, at considerable expense, been obtained; but the wreck ultimately sanded up, and her position was not re-discovered until some fishermen accidentally found a portion entangled in floating ice. Within the last few weeks the parties interested, in conjunction with the committee of Lloyd's on behalf of the representatives of the underwriters who sustained loss, have resolved to employ Heinke's diving apparatus, and the result is that an examination has been effected, which shows that the wreck is at present unusually free from sand, although still buried to a great extent, and that hopes are held out of the possibility of a considerable portion of the treasure being recovered this season. It is stated, however, that prompt operations will be necessary, as from the influence of peculiar winds the sand may at any time again accumulate.—Times, August 9.

The Gridiron for the Great Eastern.—The "gridiron" at Milford Haven, for the benching of the Great Eastern, is now nearly completed. It has been in course of construction for the last two months, giving employment, at such times as the tide permitted, to about 200 men, both by day and night. It is formed on the northern side of the haven, a few hundred yards from the terminus of the South Wales Railway, fronts the Royal Dockyard, and lies as nearly due east and west as possible. The beach, to the distance of 550 feet, has been excavated and levelled to within a few feet of low water mark at spring tides, which at high water will give a depth of 25 to 27 feet. The breaching-piece itself is composed of two "grids," 50 yards distant from each other. Each grid is 150 feet long, constructed of 40 strong transverse "baulks" (or beams) of 45, 35, 30, and 25 feet long by 13 inches square. They are laid down in four lots, 10 of each length, with an interval between each beam of three feet. Each baulk of timber is firmly fixed in its place by three iron-shod piles, of from three to four feet long. The longest of these lots is laid nearest amidships, and the rest descending to their length, thus tapering off to the stem and stern, so as in some degree to correspond with the beam of that part of the ship that will be immediately above them. Two dolphins, 30 feet in height, made of four baulks, each 13 inches square, firmly clamped and bolted together, strongly supported by boat and diagonal struts, have been driven in at about 300 feet apart. These are for the ship's side to lie against, as well as to act as guides in the actual operation of beaching. One of these dolphins will be just forward of the starboard spoonon, and the other near her starboard quarter. These, together with the mooring bits and other necessary gear (all of which are provided) will keep the vessel in her position. It being intended that while beached the ship's head shall be to the westward, she will have to be swung before she goes on the gridiron, which, with a draft of her size, will be a delicate operation well worth seeing. The Great Eastern being 650 feet long, it will thus follow that when in position she will be supported for 550 feet of her length—viz., 300 on the two grids and 250 on the levelled beach, leaving only fifty feet of her bow and stern projecting beyond the timbers and excavations. The engineers of the South Wales Railway are also constructing a pier of loose stones (found on the beach and forming part of those excavated in preparing the gridiron) to enable visitors to the big ship to have a ready mode of ingress and egress at all states of the tide. The whole structure has been made at the expense of the South Wales Railway Company, and will cost upwards of £11,000. Captain Ramsay, C.B., superintendent of the dockyard, has given all the facilities in his power to the proceedings.—The Times.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1860.

The Legislative Assembly met yesterday at twenty-five minutes past three o'clock.

In answer to Mr. Egan, the Colonial Treasurer said it was the intention of the Government to propose pensions for Messrs. Garland, Nash, and Bramwell, late officers in the Customs.

Mr. Parkes brought up the report of the Select Committee on the Clarence and Richmond Rivers Steam Navigation Company's Bill.

Several new notices of motion were given by members.

On the motion of Mr. Robertson, the House went into committee on the Crown Lands Alienation Bill.

Mr. Martin maintained that the scheme of free selection in that bill, if carried into operation, would give rise to endless litigation in their courts. The only way to enable the people to settle on the land was to raise the staff of surveyors to the level of demand, whatever might be the cost. This was not a party question, and ought not to be so regarded by the Government. For himself, he was prepared to support free selection within proper limits as an experiment only. The Minister talked of abandoning the bill if defeated on this amendment to compel previous survey; but it did not follow that the House should abandon the bill. As to the threat of dissolution, others must be consulted, and he did not believe the Governor would dare to dissolve in the present state of the country. He should support the amendment.

Mr. Arnold thought there was little to be said after the speech of the Secretary for Lands on the previous night, which completely demolished the arguments of their opponents. The clause under consideration would apply the American system as far as the circumstances of this colony would admit of its being applied. Here the mass of the land was locked up in the hands of the squatters, and the only way to break in upon this state of things was to let the agricultural settler enter on making a payment that should be an earnest of his good faith. It never was intended that the squatters should impede agricultural settlement: in their leases they were prohibited from cultivating for sale. But the pastoral class had grown up into great influence, and they systematically used that influence to fence off all comers. Their first tenure was temporary—they had now got leases renewable, and by degrees they would aim at converting them into freeholds. The present bill, though imperfect, prepared the way for the people themselves to settle on the lands. The Government had taken office well knowing that the Legislature must soon decide on this question, and they were prepared to meet the consequences.

Mr. Darvall said they were met to legislate for the general interest, not any particular class. By impairing the pastoral interest, and so diminishing the revenue derivable from it, they would be injuring the country. Land could be obtained in sufficient quantities for cultivation; indeed, cultivation would not pay, and to invite men without means to settle on the lands was only inviting them to ruin. There was no parallel between this country and America; much of this colony for generations and for ever must remain pastoral, and we ought to afford the pastoral tenant an opportunity of occupying to his own advantage and to the benefit of the country. He did not see why the Ministers should adhere to this provision of the bill, and he was sure there was too much sagacity among the people for them to follow any Minister in carrying out a mere crotchet.

Captain Moriarty said they ought to deal with this question in the manner most likely to induce the settlement of population, and he believed the principle in the clause would do that most effectually.

Mr. John Campbell could not support the Government in this clause; they were going too fast for him. He would not consent to see one class ruined to gratify another. If a man would actually settle upon the land and cultivate it, he would be willing to give him 100 acres without any price at all, but this must be within just limitations.

Mr. Wilson saw much similarity between the circumstances of this colony and America, notwithstanding all that had been said to the contrary. Both countries had extensive territory, and both had to be settled. No country in its primitive state was agricultural; it was only by the industry and intellect of its people that it became so. He had travelled through most of the western States of America, after having had nine years' experience in this colony, and he believed our production of wheat was in a higher ratio than that of America. New South Wales could fairly compete with Chili and other wheat-growing lands. In America he had known wheat at 2s., and maize at 10d. per bushel, and the settler doing well, and he repeated it that our soil was more productive. What was wanted was labour on the soil. There was also a large squatting interest in America—only the stock was pigs instead of sheep, and a good beech country there bore as high a value as a good salt bush here.

Mr. Cummings would be willing to vote for free selection before survey if it were confined to the first and second class settled districts where a sufficient quantity of suitable land was to be found.

Mr. Walker said it was an established fact that agriculture would not pay, and throwing more land into the market would only make things worse.

Mr. Oakes had been a free selector of Crown lands for thirty years, first in Camden, then, as population pushed him onward, in Argyle, and then in the Lachlan district. For what were the reserves made but to be taken up and occupied. At Gundagai, wheat now was 20s., which was a proof that sufficient was not grown. He had himself grown forty-five bushels to an acre. He voted for free selection before survey that others might enjoy what he had enjoyed.

Mr. Hodgson defended the squatters. The provision in this clause would entice persons to settle in the pastoral districts purposely to annoy. It was the most objectionable feature of the bill.

Mr. Lucas contended that the free selection provided for in this bill could not injuriously interfere with the squatters.

Mr. Plunkett contended that this provision would be no boon to those for whom it was intended. Nor was the same principle known to the American land policy. He should support the amendment, and he had little fear of the threatened consequences if it were carried.

Mr. Ashurst thought that if any feeling of hostility to the squatters existed, they had brought it upon themselves by resisting the tide of population. He believed the country was particularly adapted to agriculture. He was, therefore, in favour of selection before survey, but was prepared to take selection in any less acceptable form.

Mr. Deniehy considered selection dependent on survey would prove a sham and delusion, and he affirmed that free selection was at the bottom of the successful working of the American system. The clause before them was clumsy, he admitted, but, give them the important principle which it embodied, and all the rest would right itself. This measure was not to be final. They had to solve the great problem of populating the country, and he was glad to see that the Minister had taken his stand on a principle so essential to the accomplishment of that work. He looked to the creation of home feeling and love of the soil as far more valuable than mere physical prosperity.

The committee divided, when the amendment was carried by 33 to 28.

Mr. Robertson moved that the Chairman leave the chair.

Mr. Plunkett moved as an amendment that the words be added—"report progress, and ask leave to sit again on Wednesday."

The committee divided and Mr. Plunkett's amendment was also carried, by 33 to 28, Mr. Gordon having crossed over to the Ministerial side and Mr. Deniehy to the Opposition.

The committee again divided on the motion, as amended, with 34 to 27.

The House having accordingly resumed, another division took place on the motion, when put from the Chair, with 36 to 25.

The divisions were followed by loud cheers and counter-cheers, with cries of "dissolve."

Mr. Robertson said, that, considering the great responsibility of his position, it would not be deemed unreasonable that he should ask an adjournment until Wednesday. He therefore moved that the House adjourn till three o'clock on Wednesday.

The announcement was received with loud cheers, and renewed cries of "dissolve," from the Ministerial side.

We cordially accept the assurance of Mr. Deas Thomson that he would not assent to a measure which, in his judgment, compromised the rights of other denominations, or which imposed a yoke upon his own. In the same spirit he will comprehend the opposition we are compelled to offer to the Synod Bill. If, however, any are opposed to this bill with the desire to obstruct the prosperity of the Episcopal Communion we are not of that number. In the discussion of this bill some not very complimentary insinuations have been hazarded. Some among us owe no great enthusiasm to the national Church or its more rigid supporters. They have known it as a dominating Church, reaping where it did not sow—calling out the forces of military and civil law in furtherance of claims inconsistent with justice and humanity—excluding from all public employment and political rights those not under its banners; and, when this was no longer possible, inculcating the most bitter antagonism to all other forms of religious profession. The burnt child dreads the fire even when it is going out.

If, then, the very idea of legislating for the Church of England, with a view to give it a legal status and corporate force, revolts the majority of the people of this colony, no man who here calls himself a Churchman, in the exclusive sense, has a right to complain. We refer to these things not to reproach gentlemen who, we are sure, as little approve them as we do, but as an explanation of that jealousy which some have represented as malignity, and which is nothing other than fear based on reminiscences the most bitter.

This, it is true, should not prevent the removal of any disabilities which press upon the Episcopalians as Christian colonists. They have no right, however, to call upon the colony to assist in raising them to a superior status. They have no right to expect that other denominations will establish here by law what they have refused to establish at home—a legal connection between the Church of England and the persons who hold the same doctrines in this colony. If the Church of England, as such, has not bound to itself the colonial adherents of its principles—if the British Parliament has distinctly refused to acknowledge them in any way—if the Courts Spiritual of England resolve, in spite of our laws, to treat the decisions of colonial bishops as null and void,—ought we to be expected to bridge the chasm?

We deny the power of any colonial legislature to enable the Church of England, as such, to do what it does not now possess the power to do by British law. We may establish a new Church—having a certain resemblance to the Church of England, and in other things imitating the Church of Scotland, or the Wesleyan polity. We may erect such a Church, but we cannot either alter or establish the Church of England. It is shown, not only by ecclesiastical decisions at home, but by the solemn ruling of our courts of law, that the Church of England does not go beyond her own shores,—the colonial bishops are treated as titular bishops,—their orders may be admitted, but their judicial functions are repudiated. Can we give them, by our law, a character they do not possess by the law of England? There it strikes us the case of this bill signally fails. We are to do for the members of a national Church sixteen thousand miles away what that Church has declined to do, namely, make colonists a part, not of an Episcopal communion, but of a National Church. We are to drop down New South Wales into England. Were the Lutheran Church to ask the same thing, we should see our way clear at once; we, should tell them that we could not invest with legal powers the consistory of Berlin—and where is the difference?

It is alleged that legislation is necessary to remove a difficulty. The Act of Henry VIII. is quoted, which prohibits certain meetings, and this is deemed decisive. If this law apply to this colony, can it not be repealed so far?

If we have power to release the clergy by the Synod Bill, cannot we do so by a repeal of the obnoxious Act; obsolete certainly, and in the opinion of most lawyers inapplicable. There can be no difficulty in meeting this case, and there would be no objection to do so. In South Australia and New Zealand, however, they have Synods in spite of this law. With reference to the Canons of the Church, we certainly are astonished that any person can think our Legislature can annul them. If they are binding on the conscience, can our Legislature discharge the conscience? If we can annul one, we can annul all, and what then becomes of the whole polity of this ecclesiastical body? The Canons have no temporal obligation in England, since they were never ratified by the English Parliament, and as far as they concern the conscience, they can only be cancelled, if binding, by the powers that imposed them.

The objection to this bill, is, no doubt, that it gives a status to the Episcopalians not asked by other bodies, and incompatible with equality. It recognises a Bishop of Sydney—it calls into existence a Synod, a tribunal, and parishes, and constitutes a legislative power whose acts may very deeply compromise the interests of all classes. We do not thus make laws, but give power to make them. It is impossible to foresee where the legislation of a Synod may trench on the public interest, or compromise the rights of the people. We believe no Church ever asked more in its first constitution than is asked by this bill. If we ever give a peculiar status to the predominant Church we open a door to further demands. This has been the constant course of things. A little "legal help," as it has been called, grows by sure steps into a proud, encroaching, and persecuting domination. We know no way by which such dangers can be met but on the threshold.

They were met at South Australia, and New Zealand, and the Episcopalians as a denomination have found out the way to govern themselves. A Court of Equity will give to them what they are entitled to possess, just as it deals with other denominations. The Episcopalians have indeed Acts in Tasmania and Victoria, but the date of their passing explains that fact. It was prior to the possession of the present representation,—it was when the Episcopalians possessed a direct influence in the Legislature beyond their real strength in the country. These bills did not, however, pass without the earnest protest of every other religious denomination. The personnel of our Upper House gives a similar advantage to one denomination, but it should be used with discretion. The Assembly will probably redress the balance.

We have not deemed it necessary to discuss at large the provisions of the Synod Bill. Opinions greatly differ as to the proper place of the Bishop. Can we settle it, or ought we to give legal force to an opinion which may for the moment prevail in this colony; ought we to enable men to say that a dogma shall be interpreted so, and in no other way. If the Church of England has left the question free—ought we to decide professedly acting its name? If it is allowable in England for clergymen to differ on questions of doctrine—to hold the most friendly intercourse with other Christians, or retreat into bitter exclusiveness; to support general education, or to tie it up to clerical control—to float from Geneva to Rome, and from Rome to Geneva, providing they never forsake the ritual of the Church or change its external worship, shall we empower the majority of a colonial Synod to create a fancy Church to the exclusion of all but their own type and call that the Church of England? It is unreasonable to ask it. When questions of ritual or doctrine are concerned the lay element is excluded by the Synod Bill contrary to the practice of England, where as in the case of Gorham the lay judges determined what was the doctrine of the Church in favour of the defendant, and against the bishop.

We call attention to the fact that all other denominations have precisely the same colonial difficulties as pertain to the episcopal body, except the law of Henry VIII. They have to protect property from perversion, to get rid of worthless ministers, to check theological innovation, and they ask no other aid than a Court of Equity, and the honest judgment of Judges in a matter of fact. The Church of Rome, with its large following, its complicated interest, its internal agitations, asks no such bill. The Church of Scotland, has confined its request to a measure strictly relating to its temporalities. If the Episcopalians would consider themselves as colonists—as away from England—as the equals of their colonial brethren, we should soon see difficulty got over; but some of them want more than this—they want the Royal patronage through the medium of colonial law,—they ask to be established as a quasi-territorial Church, with dioceses and parishes. They will not, indeed, directly control those who dissent from them, but can the Church of England, national though it be, pretend to more? If legislation can relieve colonial Christians emigrating from the Church of England from local penalties, for following out their inherent rights as a spiritual body—to regulate their own affairs, and to dispose of their own property—let the local Parliament give that relief; but here they will have all that they can reasonably demand. If they are on the footing of other churches they will be able to settle their affairs in the same way. If they wish to go beyond, our answer is that the most passionate wish of every man who has smarted from legal ecclesiastical domination, is to see its total disappearance from the colony—and especially from the statute books.

"There are objections to a plenum," said Dr. Johnson, "and objections to a vacuum, yet one or other of them must be true." A decision on any disputed point is impossible, unless the force of rival arguments is fairly balanced. There is something to be said in favour of selection before survey; but there is something also to be said against it, and the question that has had to be considered by the Assembly, is, whether its disadvantages would not far outweigh its advantages. The customary reasoning of its advocates is to this effect: the settlement of the country is the first thing to be considered, selection without survey would facilitate and perhaps stimulate settlement, therefore it ought to be unhesitatingly adopted. With the doctrine that the settlement of a body of freehold occupiers should be the aim of the national land policy, we heartily coincide. But there are other things also to be considered, and to submit to the tyranny of one idea would be a ruinous mistake. It would facilitate occupation perhaps to throw the land open to a general scramble, or to give it away, or to divide it amongst the present population. Yet we do not do these things because there are good reasons of public policy against them. Inconveniences would arise which would more than counterbalance the rapid multiplication of freehold settlers. The same consideration applies to the proposal for selection without survey. Everyone can understand how convenient it would be for an immigrant to pick his location without being trammeled by the lines of a surveyor, or being obliged to why should he become a majority might differ from him in opinion take the extreme course of flying into a passion, and scalding the House and country. Any man who made this a party question was no enemy to the country. (Hear, hear.) He trusted that when they did divide the vote would indicate the views of honorable members who would not be influenced by any consideration as to whether the House would be dissolved or not.

Mr. ARNOLD said the arguments in support of the clause and the amendment were so exhausted that there was scarcely any occasion for him or anybody to address the House. The honorable and learned gentleman had less reason to charge the honorable Premier with declamation than on any other occasion since he had been a member of the House. He ventured to say his honorable colleague's speech last night was made up so completely of argument in favour of his own proposal, and of observations tending to show how fallacious were the arguments on the other side, that it exercised a very considerable influence both on the opinions of those who supported his views, and upon the opinions, though not possibly the conduct of those who would take an opposite course. It seemed to him that his hon. friend hardly left a single argument of his opponents undemolished, and the best proof of it had been that no hon. member had ventured to resuscitate some of those absurd fallacies of which their stock-in-trade was made up. They had heard nothing more of the class of bad characters whom it was alleged would settle down on the runs of the squatters. (Mr. HAY: The allusion was not made by me.) He (Mr. Arnold) appealed to the House whether the hon. member did not endeavour to show that this bill would place the property of the squatters at the mercy of a class of most disreputable persons. (Hear, hear.) And had not this objection been most completely answered by his hon. colleague, in the course of his highly argumentative speech the other evening? It appeared to him (Mr. Arnold) that the opposition to this principle of free selection before survey was wholly untenable. Hon. members opposite professed to have no objection to the selection after survey, and if they were willing to concede this much, in what possible way could injury arise? The only difference would be that, in the one case, the settler could not occupy till after executive action took place; while in the other he could at once proceed with his improvements. What possible injury could arise from the settler holding the land during the period intervening between the selection and the survey? (Hear, hear.) And what effect could the survey exercise on the characters of the persons who came forward as selectors under the Bill? Hon. members might take it which way they pleased; but in either case they placed themselves in a dilemma. But the real fact was, they objected altogether to the principle of free selection either before or after survey. The last hon. member who had spoken (Mr. Martin) had referred to the flood of talk which had characterised this debate, and had alluded especially to the hon. Secretary for Lands. But he (Mr. Arnold) questioned whether his hon. friend (Mr. Robertson) was more obnoxious to this charge than the learned gentleman (Mr. Martin) himself, considering the average attendance of each in the House. For the time during which he was present the learned member was quite as loquacious as any member of the Assembly, and the only reason why he spoke less frequently than the Secretary for Lands was because the latter gentleman was always in his place, and therefore had more frequent opportunities of taking part in the public business. (Hear, hear.) But now, with regard to the clause under discussion. He repeated that none of the opponents of free selection had ventured to reply to the arguments of his honorable colleague (Mr. Robertson). The promoters of the bill imputed no improper motives to the advocates of free selection. They simply stated facts, and they left the House to draw their own inference as to the probable influence which would operate in the case of persons largely interested in squatting, whose interests were likely to be affected by a measure such as the one before the House. His honorable friend the Secretary for Lands had never accused the squatting members with being actuated by improper motives in opposing this bill (Cries of "Oh, oh," "Hear, hear.") He had merely stated as a fact that their pecuniary interests were largely involved, and that they could not well vote against the measure without subjecting themselves to some degree of suspicion. Some hon. gentlemen would seem to wish to have it imagined that the supporters of the bill were only anxious to injure the pastoral occupants, whereas nothing was further from the intention of the framer of the measure. The Government were unanimously desirous if possible that the whole of the public lands of the country should be thrown open to settlement. But they found that they had to deal with certain interests, which rendered it impracticable to bring such a comprehensive system into operation. How then did they propose to deal with these existing interests? Why, by leaving them just in the position they found them. They did not propose to interfere in any way with the rights of the pastoral occupants possessed under their leases; though at the same time they did not purpose giving up the power conferred by the Orders in Council under which those leasehold rights were created. (Hear, hear.) He meant, of course, the power of making reserves in the case of lands which might be deemed suitable for higher purposes than the mere grazing of sheep and cattle. The Government believed the plan embodied in this bill was the one best adapted for dealing with the question in an equitable spirit. As regarded the matter more immediately at issue, the question, to his mind, was a narrow one, though, he admitted, its results would be highly important. The real question was, shall the lands be open to selection and occupation before survey, or shall some executive interference be held necessary before the settler can commence operations? The opponents of the bill alleged that there were large tracts of territory already surveyed and open to sale, which nobody seemed desirous of securing. But it should be borne in mind that these surveys were not made at the instance of those who were best able to judge of the sort of land required (Hear, hear.) The surveys were made by persons who had no other interest in the matter than to be paid for their services, and in too many instances they had been made under the influence of a class not at all favourable to the opening up of the public lands. It did not surprise him (Mr. Arnold) to find that these surveys had not been taken advantage of; and he ventured to predict there would be more land sold within six months under free selection than had been alienated for nine or ten years past under the existing system. (Hear, hear.) If it was the case, as alleged, that the lands most adapted for agriculture were already reserved, the squatters would have nothing to fear from the passing of this clause. If, on the other hand, the suitable lands had not been thus left open to sale, there was no other method by which the settlement could be effected than by the system of free selection. A great deal had been said about the American system, and the farmers of this State had been asked why that system was not adopted in its integrity? He contended that the Government were endeavouring to introduce that system, so far as it was possible for them to do so. There were no pastoral holdings in America, it should be remembered, and their circumstances were altogether dissimilar to the state of things which existed in that country. It was impossible to bring the land into occupation on the plan adopted in America, simply because the pastoral interest had to be considered. The only way in which the Government could remedy the inconveniences thus created, was by giving the settler the power to select and occupy his land previous to survey upon his making a deposit payment in proof of his bona fides. This was the system which had been acted on from the foundation of the colony, and he could not see why it should now lead to such evils as were apprehended. The objection, if it were a valid one, would strike at the roots of the whole squatting system; for this interest was based on free selection. What other means had the squatters for taking up their runs and fixing their boundaries than those which were conferred by free selection? Even those most interested in squatting would admit that the intention in giving them the use of the public lands had been that they should occupy only them until they were required, for sale and settlement. The condition under which they held the land had shown this, and so completely had this been made evident, that the leases held by the squatters contained a prohibition against their growing grain for sale; so that it was never intended that the squatters should be agriculturists, or that they should stand in the way of the agriculturist. And the same idea might be found in the fact that power was given to the Government to reserve any portion of these runs that might be required for agricultural or other purposes. Thus it could not for a moment be contended that they were in any way aggrieved if their land were taken for other than pastoral purposes. And as to the BONA FIDES of the purchaser, the best guarantee for that was, that he was willing to pay a pound an acre for it. The squatters admitted that it was not possible for them to pay one pound an acre for the land they occupied. (Mr. CLEMENTS: Not the whole of it.) No, nor any of it, unless it was to purchase patches of land so as to secure them in the occupation of portions adjoining. But when they complained that their lands were invaded, they left out of sight that they themselves had the right to purchase, and yet were unwilling to allow a similar right to be exercised by others. They had the right to purchase such portions of their runs as they wished at £1 an acre. (Mr DARVALL: But you take away that right by this bill.) That did not alter the case at all, for the bill only gave to the selector the right of purchasing such portions of the runs as the squatters themselves had been unwilling to purchase at that price. The objection to confining the right of any person to select lands, to the lots already surveyed, had been so completely stated by his hon. colleague, that it was hardly necessary for him to go into it again; but the only reason why the Government insisted upon their view was, that if the selector were confined in his choice to these reserves, he would be confined to land that was not suitable for the purposes to which it would have to be applied. Lands suitable for agricultural purposes generally being in small patches, scattered here and there, and it would be a most difficult, and at the same time a most expensive process for the Government to send round surveyors to find out and survey these spots. But even then the evils of the system, as complained of by the hon. member, would not be mitigated, and from this he came to the conclusion that it was not to the selection before survey that the squatters objected, but that they were determined, if possible, to prevent persons from coming on to their runs at all. If the opposition of these hon. gentlemen had been confined merely to this one point of selection before survey, he would not have thought so very much about it, but what they evidently intended was to object to the right of selection even in these reserves. Now, the Government admitted, as all did, that these reserves were not applicable to the purposes intended; but the squatters, in saying this, ask—"Then, why not restore them to us?" and they said further in support of their claim, that if these reserves were given up, the Government might take up whatever land they considered necessary or applicable at any future time. But if the Orders in Council were destroyed, as it was proposed, where would be the power left to the Government to make any future reserves? That power being gone, and the squatters having possession of the land, there would be no possibility of the people getting possession of it until the leases had terminated. Yet their scheme went even farther than this, for they further intended to make provision before the termination of their leases for their renewal upon similar terms as those upon which they were now held. So that in point of fact the system would go on and go on, the squatter gradually adding to his title and fencing off everybody else, until at last the leasehold would be converted into a freehold. It had been said of himself that he desired to see these squatting leases all converted into freeholds; and so he did, but it was only upon terms that whilst they should be advantageous to the person purchasing, should be so also to the country. He would wish to see the squattages converted into freeholds, but not without making something like an adequate return to the Government for the advantages received. He desired to see a system of freehold pastorage introduced, because he believed that the system would be an improvement upon that now pursued; but he did not wish to see land taken up, and a title to it fortified from time to time, until it was made into a freehold. And, after all, what was the pastoral interest that they should so much regard it? It was one of merely secondary importance, and one that must in time, and in the natural order of things give way to the agricultural interest, in the same way as the agricultural must in its turn give place to the mercantile interest. He did not pretend to say that the bill contained the best possible provisions for making land available to the people, or that it went so far as the Government themselves were desirous of going; but they had other interests to consider, which, as a Government, they were obliged to take into account. The provisions of this bill, however, would carry out the principle that the lands of the country should be accessible to the people as freehold; whilst the reduction to 5s. an acre would be a still further step in that direction. He was not surprised at the squatters objecting to this reduction of price, because it was to their advantage to see the land kept at an impossible price, so that their occupation might be interminable. He hoped that he had shown that if this was the only objection that the squatters intended to make to this bill, their fate ought not, and could not, suffer to the extent they represented, because if the right of selection after survey was conceded, the only benefit the squatters would derive from it would be, the occupation of the land during the time necessary to complete the survey. Their object, however, was transparent, it was to prevent persons from coming on their runs at all to select land. The hon. member who had last addressed the House had strongly objectly to this measure being made a party question, but he (Mr. Arnold) apprehended that if parties were to exist at all they ought at all times to be founded upon questions of general importance to the community, and such a question was that now before that House. On no question could the determination be of greater moment—whether all classes should have an opportunity afforded them of freely selecting their future homes or not. It was a subject upon which political parties might well be called upon to express some definite opinion. It seemed to him, however, that it was not so much the facility of acquiring freehold that was considered by honorable members to be objectionable as the right of free selection at all. (Mr. FORSTER: I do not object.) There was, he felt assured, no question beside that bill upon which the relative strength of parties might be better exercised or more properly tested. (Hear, hear, hear.) The hon. member opposite had, in his speech, held out what he perhaps intended as a threat, by way of intimation to the Government as to the course which he should be ready to pursue in the event of there being a majority against this bill. He (Mr. Arnold) could only say that he had joined that Government, of which the honorable the Secretary for Lands formed one, with a full understanding as to what were the decided views of that honorable member as to the Land Question. (Hear, hear.) They all knew what those views were, and had taken office with the intention of giving their support to those views when the proper time arrived for bringing them forward. That time had now arrived, and the measure in which they were embodied was now before the House. There was no intention whatever on the part of the Government to shrink from the importance of that division to which the House must shortly come. The different members of the present Government were all mutually agreed as to the question; on that there was amongst them no difference of opinion, although there might have been some as to the manner in which the requisite changes should be effected, and the time when the discussion of the proposed changes should come on. He must say that he considered the manner in which the name of his Excellency had been made use of in this debate was most improper. (Hear, hear.) There was no question of greater importance than that upon which hon. members were now called upon to vote, and the Government were satisfied that by that bill nothing would be done which would in any way prejudice the squatting interest. The Government, of course, did not desire that that interest should be sacrificed, nor were they mad enough to suppose that they would be powerful enough to bring such a thing about. But what they desired was that the squatters should not occupy the land for pastoral purposes a day after it was found that it could be made of greater use to the community generally for agriculture and other purposes. On these grounds the Government would press the bill. (Hear, hear, hear.)

Mr. DARVALL did not believe that any member was at all likely to deny any of the general principles which the hon. member opposite had just enunciated to that House in respect of the bill. It was quite admitted that the squatting interest was one which ought to be prepared to give way to agricultural purposes, whenever the interests should be found placed in juxta position, and the maintenance of the one be found to be inconsistent with the prosperous development of the other. He (Mr. Darvall) thought that was a question which was not generally disputed. But they were not called upon to legislate as between the agricultural and the pastoral interests. It was not shewn that such was, in any degree, the case, or that there was not still plenty of land surveyed and ready for agricultural purposes. It was urged that the squatters had taken land for pastoral purposes before it had been surveyed, and that was a fact which every one readily admitted. They took land for pastoral purposes before it could be made available for any other, and, therefore, the comparison of the two cases did not hold good. The question now was this—not whether it was desirable that men engaged in agriculture should be dispersed all over the country on little bits of land in preference to being encouraged to concentrate their energies in a less widely scattered manner—but whether the land was or was not to be thrown open without any survey at all. The fact was that agriculture was a pursuit which which paid nobody at all, and even if the effect of this bill were to cause a rush upon land in certain localities, this would still continue to be the case. It was proposed to give land for agricultural purposes, but was there not sufficient land for sale already for those purposes which was not taken up, without any necessity for interfering with what was now occupied by the pastoral interest? Already much land had been surveyed which had not been sold for the purposes of agriculture. The only way to advance agriculture was to induce those who pursued it to take up land in tolerably close proximity to each other. Whether there was a large demand for land in the country or not he did not know, but he believed that the demand was small as compared with the supposed value of the opportunities for obtaining land which would be afforded by this bill. Allusion was frequently made to the case of America, but in what way was the position of America parallel to that of this country? It was in vain to argue from the land system of America that the adoption of a similar scheme would be an essful here. Land in the far west of that continent was unfit for pastoral purposes; nor did the small holdings there come into conflict with pastoral pursuits. The land there must be taken up by small holders, or not at all. But he had that faith in the regard of the people of that country for their own interests, that if they found that squatting, or agriculture, or manufactures, were most desirable, they would carry out their principles of protection in devoting the lands to the pursuits for which they were best adapted. He did not at all acquiesce in the idea that this was a matter which concerned private interests only; it affected public interests, and the public advantage. There appeared to be great difficulty as to the occupation of these small reserves, which were confessedly, in many instances, so reserved as to be unfit for any agricultural purposes whatever. If the reserves had been well selected they would have been taken up long ago. It did appear, however, that whatever might be the results of this sweeping proposition in favour of selection before survey, it would be capable to make the bill a very useful measure, by proclaiming large districts, and surveying them in a general way, so as to enable persons to select and occupy where they choose. But was it necessary to throw open the whole colony to indiscriminate selection before survey, when the demands of the people could be satisfied by throwing open land in sufficient quantity without injuring the squatter's interest in any way whatever? He conceived that for generations and for ever large districts must be set apart for squatting purposes solely: the further you went from the sea board the less fit was the land for agriculture. Hundreds of years hence would be time enough to talk of such land being required for agriculture. The duty of the legislature was to allow the squatter to occupy land which was not required for other purposes, and to see that he had a fair equivalent for what he enjoyed. There had been a necessity that the squatter should be forced into taking land before survey, and this had led to great inconvenience, and to litigation; but how much greater would be the inconvenience if, instead of having a large block of territory surveyed for agricultural purposes, here and there, contiguous to a principality, there were all over the country a vast number of small selections, the lines of which would run in all conceivable directions, making subsequent surveys entirely impossible. You would have land in all shapes and figures. [Mr. HOSKINS: "Subject to future survey."] But how could the settler be dispossessed, if he had once selected the land and paid a portion of the purchase? Could you set his boundries at defiance? [Mr. ROBERTSON: "The lines must run north, south, east, and west."] Still there would be great inconvenience in the practice; it obliged you to sacrifice the particular lines in favour of a general system of survey. He did hope that the hon. gentleman would not seek to obtain an imperishable notoriety by obstinacy in a theory which scarcely anybody but himself would support. No one could think of doing more in favour of the demand for agriculture than devoting large sections of land; and he believed that in trying to force his abstract theory of universal selection in every direction upon the House and the country, his hon. friend had been calculating without his host; he would find there was too much sagacity in the country for that. This (Mr. Robertson's) conduct would be appreciated if he would give up minor points in order to carry his bill; but he would be censured if he made it impossible for the combined honesty and intelligence of the House to pass it. Let him show that he could not meet the demand for land; but without that it was hardly likely that he would find support even upon party grounds. No evidence had been taken to show that there was any large demand for land in the country. On the contrary, we had been told that much of the land was of that worthless character that it would not be taken, having been open to the squatters for a long time past without being taken up. When you sacrificed so large an interest as the pastoral interest, you sacrificed the property of the country. The advantages offered would only be availed of for mischievous purposes, and not for purposes of agriculture. What had been the cry of honest decent men? Give us access to agricultural land, and if you cannot survey the land we want, let us go on it before survey. He would assent to that request under proper limitations, and if the present measure had been a reasonable one he would have supported it. He had long since said he was in favour of proclaiming land fit for agricultural purposes as open for selection in large districts. What more could be desired than that, and he did not believe that a party in this House would consent to more than that. For these reasons, he could not support the more extensive proposition for occupation before survey. He still hoped to see the bill pass, because until it was passed something stood in the way of the progress of the country. Bankruptcies were occuring day after day, not for want of land, but because of the extent of speculation that had been carried on. By holding out such inducements as were now contended for, you would make half the country bankrupt; thousands would be ruined through a mad scramble for property. He would be glad to encourage the occupation of land by the people to whom it fairly belonged, but he would not consent to destroy a large productive interest.

Mr. MORIARTY said the lands of the country belonged to the inhabitants of Great Britain as much as they belonged to the people of this colony, and in his opinion there should be nothing to prevent immigrants from settling upon land with the certainty of making it their own. If survey were to take place before occupation, let the survey of the whole colony be at once commenced and carried out, because the absence of survey ought not to interfere with the settlement of the country. He was pledged to support free selection, and support it he would.

Mr. J. CAMPBELL said this was one of the questions upon which he was bound to express an opinion. He was not, however, in the habit of making long speeches, because he had read the proverbs of Solomon, and knew it was said, "A man that is full of words shall not prosper on the earth." (Laughter.) He could not support the Government on this occasion, because he thought their proposition would ruin one part of the country at the expense of the other. This was not an agricultural community, and it was of no use to force agriculture at the expense of the squatters. He was for free selection now in his own way, but he could not support the scheme of the Government. (Hear, hear.) It would open a system of bribery and corruption from one end of the country to another. (Hear, hear.) The trade of the colony was rich enough now, but what would it be if the pastoral interests were depressed by the operation of this bill? New South Wales would at the present time be a most miserable place were it not for the wool we produced. (Hear, hear.) The Government in times past never took the proper course with regard to the disposal of immigrants on their arrival here; instead of sending them to the interior, they kept them in town. He for one would support some such proposition as that made for giving land to immigrants on arrival. Our gold fields, like the gold fields of other lands, would be worked out, but no doubt the squatters would by that time be able to purchase their lands or retire from them. If such a clause as this were passed it would destroy them. For the reasons he had stated he could not support the Government on this occasion, because he thought their scheme would be injurious to the general welfare of the colony, and he had sufficient patriotism in him not to give up a conscientious conviction even if its assertion compelled him to leave his seat.

Mr. WILSON, in reply to observations made by several hon. members, contended that there was one great similarity between this country and America—both were extensive, and the industrious population sought the land to settle upon the lands. The Americans had been eminently successful in their agricultural pursuits, and this had been brought about by adopting a system of free selection before survey. The Americans went to no great expense to bring out immigrants to their shores; they opened up their lands, and tens of thousands flocked to settle upon them. No country could be brought into a state of agricultural productiveness except by the energy and industry of man; and until we had this country peopled it never would become a great agricultural country, although it had great agricultural capabilities. As far as his five or six years' experience in America enabled him to form an opinion, he was in a position to say that Australia had higher natural capabilities as an agricultural country than America. The average of wheat per acre grown in New South Wales was five or six bushels to the acre above the average grown in America. Certainly some lands in America produced enormous crops; but there they were troubled with a rust of which we knew comparatively nothing. It was impossible for this country to compete with North America and Chili in the production of wheat. Why, to his knowledge, Chili was importing wheat from California, where higher rates of wages were paid than here. If an American got 10d. a bushel for his wheat he was content, and made it pay: but he brought all his enterprise and intelligence to bear on agricultural pursuits alone, and extended his operation over fifty acres where an agriculturist here attended to ten. He (Mr. Wilson) did not approve of selling land for small farms of forty acres; and he would support any amendment for making the minimum 160 acres, as a man could not support a family on much less than that. There was free selection before survey in America; and as to the argument that the survey rapidly overtook the selector in America, he might state that he had known an instance of a free selector settling upon land, who was not reached by the survey for eighteen years. And, as to the difficulty of ascertaining the limits of their claims, all that they asked for in America was that the land on which they had erected improvements should be included; and, as to the suggestion that large reserves should be surveyed and land open for selection, he believed that would not suit the dispositions of most settlers, who often set their minds upon particular localities, and became so attached to them, that they would not be induced to go elsewhere. For his own part, he would let them select where they chose, let the survey reach them as soon as possible, and then give them the land in fee simple. He would even go with the hon. member who spoke last and give the land away for nothing to the BONA FIDE agriculturist, who had shown by his undertaking the work that he was in earnest. It was a mistake to think that there were no squatting interests in America; they were there as extensive as these in this country, and the squatter looked out as sharply for good beechnut country for his hogs, as the squatter here did for salt bush. If the merchants of Sydney would aid in obtaining a liberal land measure, which should include free selection before survey, they would find small capitalists abounding in the country who would add to its prosperity in a greater degree even than the discovery of gold. He sincerely hoped the Minister for Lands would adhere to the principle of free selection before survey.

Mr. CUMMINGS considered the present question was as to whether we should have free selection before or after survey. It mattered little whether selection took place before or after survey if good use were made of it, for there was nothing of more importance than to enable the honest and industrious settler to obtain a home for himself. The survey system in the rural districts was very defective and injurious to the bulk of the people. No man was so good a judge of land as he who required to use it. If the Government wanted to create small squattages let them at once say so, but no inducement should make him consent to do an injury to the great interest of the country, unless he could be shown that counterbalancing advantages would arise from its destruction. What would the agriculturist do with the produce of the soil, with our bad roads and want of markets? Probably the country rent out £10,000 annually for wheat, but would the House destroy an interest which produce £4,000,000 for the sake of that smaller interest. He was well aware that hon. members who lived on the borders of the country constantly thought that all the interior lands of the country were in the hands of the squatters. He would ask the House whether Mr. Martin, or Mr. Hay, or Mr. Moriarty had in one word out of fifty touched the real question at issue. (Hear, hear.) Before a man could legislate on this question he must know two things—the wants of the people, and the position of the country. Had the Premier confined himself to the Orders in Council, he would have possessed as much power as he could use. He hoped, for the sake of justice and equity, they would not destroy an interest which was the bone and sinew of the country, unless they gave the poor man counterbalancing advantages. With the great knowledge of the interior of the country the Premier possessed, he must say that he had made a little mistake. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) If the hon. gentleman would confine free selection before survey in the first and second districts, he would vote for the clause—if not, for the amendment. He considered that the bill, with its conditions of residence and residence, partook of a penal character. He would go with the honorable gentleman if he would so modify the clause as to make the boon of free selection beneficial to the humble men. But he would ask, what use it would be to open the lands two or three hundred miles in the interior, when they had bad roads and no available market for produce? He did not believe in the cry that had been raised about the selection being made the means of settling cattle-stealers on the land—and such an accusation against the humbler classes ought not to be made.

Mr. WALKER said the honorable member for Braidwood (Mr. Moriarty), in the course of his very excited address, had told the House that he was pledged to his constituents to support the principle of free selection before survey, as introduced in this bill. Now, he (Mr. Walker) was also pledged on the subject of free selection, but not to selection before survey. He had always held but one opinion on the point, and he had heard nothing in the course of this debate which would induce him to change his views. Carried out in the loose higgledy-piggledy style laid down in this measure, the system of free selection would lead to endless litigation and create innumerable law suits in every part of the colony. The hon. Secretary for Lands professed to be in favour of the American system, and contended that the principles of this bill were an adaptation of that system. But so far from this being the case, he (Mr. Walker) maintained this measure was a complete mockery, a delusion, and a snare. There would be no end to the troubles and disputes which would be occasioned if this mode of selecting before survey came into practical operation. The hon. member (Mr. Plunkett) and the hon. member (Mr Martin) had very clearly pointed out the evils which were likely to ensue from the passing of such a provision. The very privilege, as it was considered, would prove disastrous to the settlers themselves; because it was well known that the great bulk of the lands of this colony were not adapted for the purposes of agriculture. At present, agriculturists were complaining that it did not pay them to cultivate, and it stood to reason that the more they increased the number of cultivators, the worse their position would become; personally he had no objection to free selection, but it should be made under proper regulations, and in no case before the survey was made. The member for the Southern Gold-fields had said that in America he had known parties to wait for seventeen years before the survey reached them, and this showed that as far as survey was concerned, the system there had been a failure. (Mr. ROBERTSON: "Not as regarded wheat.") The wheat was hardly worth considering, because people in this colony would never be satisfied with the small gains that were made in America by wheat growing. No land system that ever could be proposed would ever be the cause of inducing people to come here from Great Britain, as the distance was far too great for any land system to overcome. For himself he had no possible object to gain by the vote he gave, but having conscientious objections to selection before survey, he felt bound to support the amendment.

Mr. OAKES had been a pastoral tenant for the last thirty years, and during that time had been a free selector, first in Camden, then in Argyle, then in King, and Georgiana, and afterwards to the Lachlan and Murrumbidgee, as the tide of settlement advanced and forced him back. Having had these opportunities, he now wished that others should taste some of the sweets that he had himself enjoyed. The hon. member for the Hawkesbury had said that he would give up all his objections to free selection, if it could be shewn to him that it would not injure the squatting interest; but what right he would ask had the squatters to the reserves which had been made expressly for purposes of settlement, and the time for settling these spots had now arrived. The same hon. and learned member had also asked to be shewn that agriculture would pay, and he would inform the hon. and learned member that at Gundagai wheat was now 20s. a bushel, and had never been less since gold was first discovered. At one time also meat could be fattened in Camden and Argyle, but now it could not be done except in some few months in the year. Another thing was that he believed that these small freeholders would have to make their selections around large homesteads, where they would be able at all times to get employment, for it was his firm belief that for some years to come, these small tenants would not be able to make a living unless they got employment from the owners of large homesteads. They had been told that the farmers grumbled, but would they grumble if they had freeholds. (Hear, hear.) Some hon. member said that this country would not produce wheat, but he had himself, in King and Georgiana, grown forty-five bushels to the acre. The seasons in this country had changed during the last three years, and in point of opinion that wheat-growing would pay. If the principle of the bill were defeated, he hoped the Ministry would throw it up. If the Premier would not throw it up, he would, on Tuesday next, place a vote of want of confidence upon the paper. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. RODGSON said he was not a squatter in New South Wales, and thought, at all events, he was totally unbiassed by any interest in pastoral pursuits in coming to the consideration of this question. He maintained this was not a measure which would conduce to the good of the country, and he should record his vote against it unbiassed by prejudice or political hostility to the Ministry. He believed in the honest and sincere intentions of the hon. Premier, but when he told the squatters he was the greatest friend they ever had, all he (Mr. Hodgson) could say was "Timeo Danaos et dona ferentes." He had hoped that when the hon. gentleman made his tour in the provinces, he would have seen that free selection before survey would damn the best interests of the colony. He had no doubt if the hon. gentleman went to the country to-morrow, that he would have with him the voice of the country, but nevertheless he did not believe the hon. gentleman would send hon. members about their business. He had been a squatter for twenty-one, and although now no longer a squatter in New South Wales, for he was a squatter in Queensland (fortunately for himself), he had nevertheless a strong sympathy for the squatters of this colony. (Hear, hear.) Feeling this, he did not hesitate to say that this free selection without survey, such as was provided for by the clause before the committee, would annihilate squatting in New South Wales. (No, no.) That was his decided opinion. If the clause in question were not, to a great extent, emasculated, the interests of the squatters would be, to a great extent, annihilated. To judge of what would be its effects let them take the district of Liverpool Plains. Would any body tell him that it would pay people to go there under this Act and there occupy land? Would it be said if free selectors did go there that they would occupy land there, as such, for the purposes of agriculture? He thought not. The free selector if he went there would only go there to annoy the squatter. There it would be competent for such a party to annoy the neighbouring squatter for months—perhaps years—before a surveyor could be sent up to the locality to determine the questions which it would be in his power to raise. (No, no, and cheers.) Take again another instance. There was the large estate of Cundle Cundle at Manning River, consisting of 1500 acres under the management of a company: the experiment of agricultural cultivation in comparatively small portions had been tried there, and had entirely failed. (An hon. member: "At what price? Sixteen pounds an acre?") He had sold it for what it would fetch. (Laughter.) But scarcely so much as that. (Laughter.) The moment he had taken charge of that estate he had attempted to work it for agriculture, and had found it impossible to do so. ("At that price" Laughter.) He believed that this system was one which would cause great annoyance to the squatter. His objection to the clause was founded upon its providing free selection should take place before the survey. He thought that it should take place afterwards. It might so happen that a man might cultivate land for three or four years, and then afterwards be told that it was wanted. (No, no.) Another great objection was that no fencing was to be required. If the clause were carried, the effect could only be that the squatter would have to retire altogether. This was not the measure that was required. What was wanted was, that the land might be surveyed, and that the newly-arrived immigrant might so be able to go to the proper office and choose and buy such land as he might require, whatever the price might happen to be. The clause before the committee was the most objectionable clause in the bill, and must be materially modified before he could be induced to assent to it. No doubt, a settlement of the Land Question was looked for and was urgently required. Until it was passed the revenue must fluctuate, and no permanent flow of immigration into this colony could be expected. The passing of such a clause would not cause those happy cottages and smiling faces, of which they had heard so much, but would merely cause, in the different localities of the colony in the interior, nothing to be heard of but lawless cattle stealers and dens of thieves. ("Oh, oh," and cheers.)

Mr. LUCAS said the hon. member had, no doubt, made a very humorous speech, but had very slightly touched upon the main question. When he had touched thereon it appeared to him that the hon. member had put his foot in it. (Laughter.) The hon. member, and the other hon. members who had taken the same view, had failed to give any arguments in support of their opinions and assertions against this clause. It was impossible that free selection before survey could interfere with the squatters possessed of leases for many years to come. By free selection in America 115 millions of acres had there been brought under cultivation, and agriculture had there flourished to such an extent that we were actually dependant upon that country for breadstuffs. (Hear, hear.) There the effect of free selection in America was to cause the land to be occupied by men—the absence of free selection here to cause it to be occupied by cattle. The free selection of land before survey there was, as respected land on a small scale, in New South Wales it was done by the squatters upon a large scale. Then again there was free selection before survey on the gold lands. That was a free selection which, so far as he knew, had been found to work well—at all events it had never produced any harm. As regarded Mr. Black's suggestion as to free grass he was not favourable to it, believing that any such right would allow the cattle of the larger squatter to eat away all the grass, to the injury of the smaller cattle-holder. The land which had been hitherto surveyed had been of an inferior character, and never been what was properly adapted to cultivation. That was the reason why it had not been taken up for cultivation. If land was selected before measured and surveyed, that would not be attended with inconvenience. The boundaries of a block, as applicated to be laid down, might with considerable accuracy, be marked out by the holders themselves. He believed that the great object of hon. gentlemen on the other side of the House, in the part they were taking, was to preserve their squattages. Surely those gentlemen must have extraordinary consciences, who, having sometimes hundreds of miles of water frontage contiguous to a navigable river, yet raised a loud cry immediately a poor fellow wanted about forty acres for agriculture, and said, "Oh, my squattage will be destroyed; this man will become a cattle-stealer." (Mr. DARVALL: "Perhaps he is one ready made.") Well, then, give him a freehold, and you would know where to find him. (Laughter.) If people could live on land for which they paid £8 an acre, surely they could manage to live under free selection. Gentlemen who had taken up their ten or twenty thousand acres under preemptive right at £1 per acre, often would not allow a poor man in the neighbourhood to have any of it at less than some £30 per acre. Why should a person be prevented from making the land of the colony more productive than it now was, and be forced to be the slave of those who had been more fortunate, and who, if they had the power, would not allow him to get as much land as would bury him? Look, for instance at the high price charged for graves at the Camperdown Cemetery—thus carrying out the system after a man was dead.

Mr. J. CAMPBELL rose to explain that the Camperdown Cemetery was private property. The Bishop had refused to let the dead be buried at the other cemetery, and so that piece of land at Camperdown had to be bought.

Mr. LUCAS: More shame for the Bishop not to have provided a place to bury the dead. I believe and am convinced that there is scarcely a poor person buried in the Camperdown Cemetery but has had to pawn his furniture for the purpose of getting a grave. (Peals of laughter.) I say—and I say it as a fact—that a poor person could not get buried there without having to pawn his furniture to do so—(renewed laughter)—at least his friends for him. I have made a mistake. (Laughter.) It was not correct that this country could not grow enough for its own consumption; there was no vegetable known to man that could not be grown in New South Wales. All that was wanted was, a good land law and internal communication, to open up the lands for this country to export a large quantity of cereals. When the hon. and learned member (Mr. Darvall), asked where was the evidence of a demand for land, it showed what an extraordinary amount of evidence was required to convince a lawyer against his inclination. The hon. and learned gentleman knew well that cultivation would pay in this country, even with those who had had to pay £8 an acre for their land. It this bill were not passed the agitation would not end here If the squatters would not accept this bill they would have to take a worse one. ("Hear, hear," from Mr. Robertson.) He believed that it would benefit the squatters to get a number of small cultivators in their immediate neighbourhood, and would be better for them than at present when they had often to pay as much as £40 a ton for flour from Sydney.

Mr. PLUNKETT thought it was not fair for the hon. gentlemen on the other side to have all the talk to themselves. This being the most important clause in the bill, it was natural that a greater number of members should offer their opinions on it. He had not had the thirty years' experience in squatting possessed by the hon. member for Parramatta (Mr. Oakes). But thirty years ago, if a person wished to remain where he was, he could have obtained free grants of land; or in the county of Cumberland, he could have had land at five shillings an acre, and afterwards at twelve shillings: but that was very different from the free selection now proposed. Even when the colony was all open, and when settlers had only the aboriginals and the kangaroos to interfere with them there was nothing like free selection. The surveys soon followed after the grant had been made. At the same time that the orders of the Governor were given for the grant orders were given to a surveyor to follow the settler. [Mr. ROBERTSON: "Years after."] No; not years after. (Mr. ROBERTSON: "Yes.") Well that was the fault of the surveyor, until he had surveyed the land no title could be given in law. In Devine's case there was possession without survey. The survey of the disputed land did not take place, or at least it could not be ascertained in the Survey Office for some years, but the grant was pronounced by the Supreme Court not to be worth the parchment that it was written upon. The plain ancient landmarks of the British law could not be overridden. It was useless to offer a man a piece of land unless the boundaries were so plain and certain, that he could bring an action of trespass against any one found upon it, and could prove by some document that it was his property. This was the English and also the American law. He was old enough in the colony to recollect when squatting first originated. If the wise policy that the Government first originated, had been adopted and been since carried out, we should not have had all the difficulties that have arisen. That Governor never granted a squattage to any man; he merely gave a license to persons whose characters deserved it—from year to year. Sir George Gipps unwisely divided certain districts on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Crown Lands. He happened to be counsel in the first squatting case that ever was tried in 1838. It was then ascertained that possession was sufficient to maintain a squatting action, and first possession was always now required into in squatting cases. The boundaries came in only incidentally; the license was hardly ever looked to—it was no title. When the Orders in Council came in they gave a right to every one in possession in 1837 to a lease. There was, he contended, no analogy between this country and America. The squatters in America had a full right to that term; they went to the thick bush, axe in hand, without any one near them. As had been stated in the course of this debate that in America land was sometimes taken seventeen or eighteen years before survey, but he had referred to a lecture delivered by the American Consul in Melbourne, and to other authorities on the working of the land system in the United States, and they all stated that the surveys being rapidly made followed fast on the heels of population. The free selector there only required to make an affidavit of having been six months in possession, and to give three months' notice of claiming the right of pre-emption after the whole district had been brought into the market. One circumstance that showed that the Government of the United States never intended to give a title for occupation before survey was this,—that an Act was passed in 1819, and was still in existence, that in case, after the survey, the squatter happened to squat upon a part that was reserved for educational purposes, all he got was a right to change his land for some in another place. Some hon. members had spoken as if those who were opposing free selection before survey did so from the apprehension that their interests would be thereby damnified. He was no squatter, and never had been one; and his sympathies were rather with the class who had had to pay a pound an acre for their land, and who had given thousands of pounds on the faith of having at least proper surveys, than with the squatters who had had very great privileges. Every vote he had given upon this bill, would show that he had not made it a party question. He desired to see the hon. gentleman at the head of the Government carry through this bill with some amendments, but he could not vote for the clause before the House in its present shape, because he believed it would introduce a state of anarchy, confusion, and litigation. Free selection before survey would be no boon to a man if afterwards he had to remove the whole of his fence. If they passed this clause in its present shape they would be sowing the seeds of anarchy, and for that reason he could not imagine how any one looking to the probability of such a state of things could deem it his duty to vote for it. He admitted the difficulty which formerly existed in obtaining information in reference to the land, and also the imperfect and mischievous state in which the law as it respected the alienation of land in this colony had been up to the present, and he desired with all his heart to support the Ministry in passing a land bill which would render easy the acquisition of land by the people. He desired that the widest range of free selection should be given to the bona fide settler, but after survey. There was no excuse for the Government not getting the land surveyed when they had before them the example of America. No expense ought to deter the Government from making the Survey effective as to keep in advance of the demand. There would then be no fear of the purchaser of land from the Government laying a lawsuit. Even in his hand the land bill of South Australia, and the fourth clause of that

[FROM OUR SPECIAL COMMISSIONER.]

OCTOBER 20TH, 1860.—To-day's escort takes 1411 oz. 10 dwts. 6 grs., and £900. I know it is very difficult to convince persons at a distance that there are so few men working, but my estimate of 1200, instead of being under, is, I am fully convinced, an over statement. This week men have only been enabled to work three days, and while writing this, the rain is still descending; the changes here are so sudden that I should not be surprised if to-morrow is a fine summer's day; but, should such be the case, it will be several days before the river claims will be enabled to work. With respect to the general idea that there was only a patch in the river that was payable, every day proves the contrary; it is already taken up for several miles, many parties going to great expense in blasting the rocks for the purpose of turning the river, others working the first claims over for a third, and in some instances a fourth time, and getting payable gold. With a few weeks' fine weather our escorts will soon improve, yet at the present time there is no gold-field in the colonies that is producing the amount of gold, per man engaged, that Kiandra is. That it requires a little capital I admit, but our present escorts prove that it pays for the outlay. Some excitement was caused here at the commencement of the week, by reports of large finds at Wahgunyah, some seven or eight miles from the Murray, on the Victorian side: and many left without waiting to hear particulars, since which, many reports have been received, the tenor of which are, that there is nothing as yet to encourage them to proceed there; the sinking varies from 100 to 200 feet, and one report states, the ground is taken up for miles, and out of forty holes bottomed, in only three is there payable gold.

A petition is about to be presented to the Government from this place, one paragraph from which, will explain its purport. "That the increased and increasing business of Kiandra, and the surrounding gold-fields urgently requires that the District Court should hold its sittings here on its usual circuit on the Maneroo and districts adjacent," a prayer, I think, few will be inclined to dispute. The establishment of a Court of Requests for the recovery of small debts would be a very great boon, for at present all cases have to be taken to Cooma, a distance of sixty miles; and there are a class of individuals well knowing the difficulty there is in bringing them to court do not forget to take advantage of it.

SLY GROG SELLING AT THE FOUR MILE.—Two or three persons were fined for this offence at the Police Court on Wednesday, the proceedings reflect but little credit on Mr. Sanderson. I do not wish to say anything to uphold grog-selling, but if it is to be put down a different system ought to be adopted. At the Four Mile there is not a single public-house, and all the police may do they cannot prevent it; for considering the weather we have here sometimes it is not very surprising that men wet through should wish for a glass of grog, and when they are obliged to send informers to live in the neighbourhood in the disguise of diggers, who with difficulty are enabled to purchase a couple of shillings' worth of grog—the evil cannot be very great. If they mean putting it down, let it be by other means than this spy system; it only brings the police into contempt. For, if the evil is so great, they will have no difficulty in getting convictions by what I may call fair means. If they are sincere in their intentions, there is a better field in the township for them, where there is no excuse for sly grogselling, yet it exists to a considerable extent, and they know it. How is it they do not interfere?—a question Mr. Sanderson is better enabled to answer than I am.

NEW CRUM HILL.—The sinking on this place is going ahead, and those who have bottomed are well satisfied with the result. In one part of the hill they have come across a very fine cement. It consists of rounded washed quartz stones, with small gravel and a great quantity of mundic. I have seen several pieces, with gold interspersed through it. We have no crushing machines that we could test it with, but I have little doubt the day is not far distant when it will be crushed, and prove to be payable. The quantity of mundic in it will, I am afraid, with our present knowledge with respect to this mineral, be the only drawback, for at present it seems that quartz or cement with a large proportion of mundic in is very difficult to amalgamate. It is to be hoped the experiments about to be tried at the Mint will solve this important question. A fourth share in one of the claims on this hill was sold this week for £100. One party I had some conversation with only acknowledged to a "tucker" claim. I afterwards heard on good authority their "tucker" claim was producing between thirty and forty ounces per week. On the flat between the creek and this hill several men have commenced sinking, varying in depth from six to ten feet. I saw one tub washed that produced about a pennyweight, and one from another claim about two dwts.

TUMUT RIVER.—The party at work here have been obliged to register their claim, for they have so much water to contend with at present. The prospects they have been enabled to try are most encouraging, from two to four dwts. to the dish.

FOUR MILE.—At this place, the population is already at work, getting wages. Preparations are being made to put up more puddling machines.

NINE MILE.—Population on the increase. The tunnelling party have not been enabled to work for the last few days.

TANTANGARA.—At this place, some seven miles distant, a party have commenced sinking on a "made" hill. They have not yet bottomed, but from the indications expect to get gold.

I sent you particulars on Thursday of another hill being discovered. I received the information from one of the parties working the claim, and have but little doubt of its correctness; but for reasons best known to himself the locality then indicated is not correct. I will endeavour to get the correct locality, and send you the particulars.

POLLACK'S GULLY.—All the solid ground left on this gully is now being worked.

The two small rushes mentioned as taking place on the camp side of this gully, at present are failures.

SURFACE HILL.—The party sinking on this hill for a quartz reef at a depth of sixty feet have come across some stone, some of which I saw crushed; in each stone there was a few specks of gold but nothing payable. They are very sanguine that they will yet get a payable reef. All the sluicing claims are at work on this hill with good results.

The storekeepers and publicans are beginning to get alive to their interests. Last night a meeting was held for the purpose of collecting a prospecting fund, and in a very short time between £200 and £300 was collected.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

21st October.—Raining hard since the morning of the 19th; another flood in the river. The weather very much against the miners.

BENCH BUSINESS.—Sly Grog-Selling.—On the 16th Sarah Fleet, Mary Moore, William Campbell, and Samuel Turnbull, were each convicted of sly grog-selling, and sentenced to pay a fine of £30, or three months' imprisonment.

CARDS.—Daniel M'Gillivray pleaded guilty to some parties, without his knowledge, having played cards in his licensed house, and was fined 40s. Thomas Daly was also indicted for sly grog selling, but escaped from the insufficiency of th evidence.

On the 19th, William Castles for stealing a shovel from William Kidde's store, was sentenced to four months' hard labour in Goulburn gaol.

CARD PLAYING.—A. C. Croy, publican, at the Nine Mile, for the above offence, and to pay 40s., and Thomas Pedott, for unlawfully detaining a horse belonging to Charles Wilson, was ordered to deliver up the same.

PROSPECTING.—A meeting was held on Friday night at Benjamin's Hotel, for the purpose of raising a fund to aid in the development of these gold-fields. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather a very good muster was made, and upwards of £200 subscribed. A committee was formed, under whose supervision it is to be hoped the hill round about the township will be thoroughly tried. The great point will be to get a thoroughly practical and honest overseer—for in the majority of these cases paid prospecting parties do but very little in consequence of the difficulty in superintending them. Let this mining party be confined to within a radius of two or three miles from town, and this stumbling block will surely be avoided.

MUSIC.—The first concert attempted at Kiandra will be given at Reilly's Hotel, in aid of the Hospital fund, on Monday evening next. We heartily wish it success, and hope it may lead to a series of public concerts, which, if well conducted, would tend most beneficially and pleasantly to wile away the evening hours, and afford to many an opportunity of passing their time more agreeably and much more economically than at present. A brass band of some merit has enlivened our streets within the last week.

EXTENDED CLAIMS.—Much has been said lately of the regulations, as at present existing, with regard to extended claims. Some blame the regulations, others the Commissioners. The Alpine Pioneer is full of complaints, which, in many instances, can be traced to parties against whom decisions have been given. They feel themselves aggrieved—take a one-sided view of the matter—rush into print,—and seem to vie with each other in the use of abusive expressions against the ruling powers. Surely this intemperate course is not the one best calculated to redress their grievances. Is the Commissioner in charge so inaccessible as not to listen to the complaints of a respectable body of miners? And if the regulations prevent his acceding to any reasonable demands, is he likely to object to their being revised. Again if peculiar laws and regulations are requisite for this gold-field, why have the miners not availed themselves of their power to start the Local Court about which so great an outcry was raised the other day, and then to have framed and submitted an efficient code. They can now have only themselves to blame. The cry is that the claims are too small, whereas on unworked ground they are in fact larger than any given on the Victoria fields.

ESCORT.—Notwithstanding the heavy rain last Sunday, and the damage done to many of the river claims which disabled them from working until Wednesday, we have an escort nearly equal to that of last week, viz., 1411 ozs. 10 dwts. 6 grs., and £900 in notes, and this, notwithstanding the alarming reports of diggers leaving by hundreds. We see no reason whatever for all this outcry, and have no doubt but that with an increase of population, and with anything like settled weather, our weekly escort will gradually increase, and in a few months surpass the largest that has been sent from these fields.

GOLD DUTY.—The abolition of the gold duty should either have been carried through without hesitation, or as soon as proposed it should have been officially notified that nothing would be done in the matter until next year. Now, by postponing the question from week to week, consignees and banks are kept in suspense, and en attendant very little gold will be coined. With the exception of 340 ozs. 8 dwts. the whole of the gold by this escort is kept back and forwarded deliverable to order.

HOAX.—We have had another extraordinary find of as much as 2 ozs. 7 dwts. to the dish. The locality was said to be not far from the camp on the Saw-pit Gully. It created a great deal of excitement, and the country has been scoured but without finding the slightest trace of the fortunate spot. It is either pure fiction, or the discoverers have succeeded in keeping it more than usually dark.

TUMUT.—Undeterred by the ever-recurring floods, new parties are setting in to turn the river bed. All seem to look for a handsome reward if they can only succeed in so doing.

UMBRALLA.—A party has just arrived in town, and reports having found very good prospects. This is the more to be depended on, as he merely came in to get an extended prospecting claim, and returns immediately.

EXODUS.—They say that upwards of 400 men have left this for Wagunyah rush. The streets certainly look quite deserted; even the public-houses are no longer busy and well filled; but I do not imagine it anything but a temporary lull.

ARRIVALS.—Many drays have come in, and there are some twenty between this and Denison. Several tons of flour have arrived: present price £75 to £80 per ton; maize, 23s. per bushel; eggs, 4s. a dozen; hay, £50 per ton.

LAW.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY.

SITTINGS IN BANCO.

BEFORE Chief Justice Sir John Dickinson, and Mr. Justice Wise.

THE QUEEN V. BUTLER.

This was a special case from the last sittings of the Supreme Court in its Criminal Jurisdiction. The defendant had been convicted and sentenced for obtaining cattle by false pretences from one G. Sinden. The false pretences being that he had authority to draw upon one Forbes in payment. Two points were raised by the prisoner's counsel. One was that the presiding Judge had improperly admitted evidence of previous transactions by defendant with Forbes by way of shewing that he could not, at this time, have had any authority to draw upon the latter. The other and principal objection was that the possession of the cattle had passed from Sinden to Butler before the false pretences relied upon were made, consequently that they were not obtained through those pretences, and that Sinden had only a right of action against Butler, the latter having committed no offence cognisable under the criminal law. The argument urged against the validity of the latter objection was, that the indictment would be sustained if the false representations were made during the progress of the transactions, there being no particular time at which, under the circumstances of this case, the possession could be said to have absolutely and finally passed. The whole of the evidence was gone through and commented upon.

Mr. Martin, Q.C., and Mr. Windeyer appeared in support of the objections, and the Attorney-General in support of the conviction.

Their Honors held that the evidence had been properly admitted, the transaction with Forbes having been virtually continuous, or at all events so far connected as to make the evidence good. As to the other and most material point, the decision was reserved, with an intimation that a written judgment would be prepared.

M'CAFFERY V. JONES.

This was an application, upon notice, to rescind or vary an order, by Mr. Justice Milford, in Chambers, dismissing with costs an application to have the above case tried in the District Court at Braidwood.

Mr. Butler appeared in support of the motion, and Mr. Isaacs showed cause against it.

The action had been one for an alleged illegal seizure of property by a special bailiff, at Narulan, near Braidwood, and the grounds of the application in chambers had been that the principal witnesses were resident in that district. On the other side, it had been averred, that to try the case in Sydney would be less expensive and more convenient, while there were questions of difficulty which would render trial in the Supreme Court preferable. As to the merits and facts of the case, the statements were conflicting. The material questions now raised were first, whether the Judge had exclusive jurisdiction to make this order so as to deprive the full Court of jurisdiction to review it. Secondly, whether the peculiar fact of his Honor having dismissed the application with costs would give this jurisdiction. Thirdly, if their Honors had jurisdiction, whether the present case was one in which it ought to be exercised?

Other matters, involving no question of general interest, were disposed of.

Before the Primary Judge.

CERTIFICATES.

The certificates of discharge granted by the Chief Commissioner to Edward Langley and Maurice Reynolds were confirmed by the Court.

ESTATE OF HENRY PARKES.

Mr. Windeyer moved for the release of the above estate from sequestration. The facts as shewn by affidavit on which he thus moved were these: A meeting of creditors in this estate had been duly called by advertisement in the GOVERNMENT GAZETTE, and had been held at the Supreme Court-house on the 23rd August last, at which Mr. Barker, on Mr. Parkes' behalf, made an offer of £10 as composition under the provisions of section 80 of the Insolvent Act for the release of the estate. This offer was unanimously accepted by the creditors present. A second meeting had been held at the same place on the 24th instant, after forty-two days notice in the GOVERNMENT GAZETTE for final decision, at which the before mentioned offer was again finally taken. The present application was made with the consent of the official assignee, Mr. John Morris.

His Honor directed that the estate should be released from sequestration, but that the order for such release should be in the office of the Chief Commissioner for a fortnight, and that notice of the same should in the interim be given twice in each of the daily papers. At the end of the fortnight the order to become final and absolute if no sufficient cause were shown against it.

INSOLVENCY COURT.

In the estate of Hugh Maxwell, an adjourned examination. The witness to be examined was prevented by indisposition from being present. The meeting was therefore further adjourned until the 9th proximo.

In the estate of Alexander Gow, an adjourned meeting. Insolvent was still unable to be present. Mr. Thomas Holmes was examined by Mr. Want, in reference to a sale to insolvent, a few years ago of certain shares in the Fitzroy Iron Company, for £2000, and as to a transfer or gift of money to sons of witness. The meeting was then adjourned until 23rd proximo

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

BEFORE the Police Magistrate, with Messrs. Campbell, Williams, Hogg, Hoss, and H. S. Hill.

Five persons, convicted of having been found drunk in the streets, were severally sentenced to pay 10s., or to be imprisoned twenty-four hours.

James Jackson, alias Russell, was brought before the Bench as an idle and disorderly character, a companion of thieves and other bad characters, was sentenced to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour three calendar months. Ann Ryan, Caroline Long, and Ann Hunter, idle and disorderly persons, were sent to Darlinghurst for one month.

Caroline Redgate, for having in a public place made use of obscene language, was ordered to pay a penalty of 20s., or to be imprisoned seven days.

Jane Richards was summarily convicted of having, six or seven months since, stolen a bonnet and a visite, valued at 20s., the property of Eliza Gordon. Prisoner was in Mrs. Gordon's service, and after about four weeks complaining of being unwell, whereupon Mrs. Gordon sent her to bed; some time in the course of the evening she was missing; next day several articles were missed, and among them the visite and bonnet now in Court. A warrant, it appeared, was promptly applied for, but was not executed until lately, when prisoner was found at Wollongong and these articles in her possession; she alleged that the daughter of prosecutrix gave her the articles alleged to be stolen. To be imprisoned fourteen days.

Catherine Richards, found guilty of having stolen two pairs of stockings, the property of Charles Long, was sentenced to be imprisoned one month.

Mary Coyle was brought before the Court by sergeant Sutton, who yesterday apprehended her on a warrant in which she was charged with having committed wilful and corrupt perjury. It was intimated to the Bench that another person, charged in the same warrant with perjury, was under remand until Tuesday, whereupon their worships remanded Coyle until Tuesday.

ANN Lewis appeared on summons to answer a charge of having unlawfully assaulted sergeant Kelly, he being at the time in the execution of his duty as an officer of police. It appeared that a little after ten o'clock in the evening of the 13th instant Kelly, being on duty on the Glebe Road, saw a girl leave a public-house, carrying a jug, and followed her; she ran, and he ran; just after she had entered her mother's (the defendant's) gate he caught hold of her, she screamed, and before he could take the jug out of her hand, the defendant came out, took hold of his coat and pulled at it so vigorously that every button, from the waist to the throat, came out of its hole; this was the assault complained of; he had secured the jug and handed it to constable Toomy; he then proceeded to apprehend defendant for assaulting him. Defendant resisted this sort of thing, and the two officers took her in hand, with a view to locking her up. The noise of the children however (Mrs. Lewis has six or seven) attracted the attention of Mr. Julius Hegarth, of Mary Hughes his servant, and of the Rev. Thomas Smith. Mary Hughes was first on the scene, and saw the two policemen dragging Mrs. Lewis from her premises into the street, Mrs. Lewis resisting as well as she was able, and saying that she had done nothing but protect her child. Mr. Hegarth gave similar evidence. The Rev. Thomas Smith deposed that he was about to undress for bed, when he heard the screams of a female, and as they continued, he went out to ascertain the cause; this was about ten minutes past ten o'clock; he found Mrs. Lewis on the road, sergeant Kelly on one side and a constable on the other, trying to drag her toward the station-house; her face was bruised and swollen, covered with blood, one arm was considerably lacerated and bleeding, and her clothes were torn; he thought they were using unnecessary violence in the apprehension of a little woman, and spoke to them, when he was threatened that if he interfered, he also would be apprehended; he told them that he was a minister of the gospel, that he knew the woman, and whatever charge they had against her would guarantee her appearance to answer it; they were then very civil, and released the defendant, who returned to her house and children, all of whom were in the greatest state of alarm for their mother, and some of them appeared as if they had left their beds. Mr. Moffatt, for the defence, submitted that sergeant Kelly was clearly shown to be the aggressor, and not his client, who was bound to protect her child, even against a constable, that the child had done no wrong whatever some publican may have done; and that as Kelly had no right to interfere with the child, or take away the jug, he by so doing committed an assault, which formed no part of his duty. The information he submitted, should be dismissed. The Bench were unanimously of opinion that the sergeant was in the execution of his duty, and had been by defendant assaulted, but, inasmuch as they thought he had exceeded his duty by the use of unnecessary and unjustifiable violence in her apprehension, they would impose upon defendant the nominal penalty of 1s. only. Mr. Cory conducted the prosecution.

George David Mackay, of Five Dock, schoolmaster, was found guilty of an aggravated assault upon Mary Ann Clark, between six and seven years of age. The information was that one of Henry Tilson, the girl's grandfather, with whom she resided, had deposed that shortly after eight o'clock on the morning of the 19th October, the girl went from his house to school; having partly ceased by that morning he knew that there was not a mark of violence anywhere about her body; about half-past one o'clock he met the girl coming from the direction of the school and towards home, crying bitterly, and scarcely able to walk; she told him that the schoolmaster had beaten her, and found her covered, from the hips to the heels, with marks of stripes; having heard her statement, went with her to the school, and saw both defendant and his wife; they asked him to go in, but he refused to go in, and was in such a rage that he recollected nothing of what was said by either them or him. The girl herself was too ignorant to be admitted a witness. George Tilson met the girl and her grandfather, and saw the state of the child; there were as literal thirty cuts or stripes, evidently of very recent infliction, and some of them were tinged with the colour of the blood to the skin. Dr. Hogg deposed that Tilson brought the child to him as a magistrate, and wished for a warrant, which he declined to afford; he saw the child, and found from the small of her back to the calves of her legs, marks of severe flogging—he thought, with a cane; some of the marks showed an effusion of blood, and other abrasions of the cuticle. Evidence for the defence was given to show that the child had been severely beaten by her mother. Their Worships found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to pay a penalty of £5, with 2s. costs, or to be imprisoned one month.

WATER POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

BEFORE the Water Police Magistrate, Mr. E. Raper, and Mr. D. Foden.

Edward Roach, again apprehended as a vagrant, was sent to the House of Correction for one month.

Thomas Fenwick, master of the vessel Margaret Dundas, was fined 10s. with costs, for neglecting to maintain a constant bright light at the mast-head of his vessel whilst she lay in the harbour on the night of the 24th instant.

Arthur Brooks, seaman, belonging to the ship Woolloomooloo, was sentenced to four days' hard labour in gaol, for disobedience of lawful commands.

John Davis, a seaman, convicted of desertion from the ship Naomi, was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour in gaol.

Two persons were brought before the Court for drunkenness in the streets, one of whom was fined 10s., or to be imprisoned twenty-four hours; the other was discharged, this being his first offence.

William Maker, butcher's boy, was found guilty of having committed an assault upon George Hook, butcher, George-street, by throwing him down. Fined 10s. with costs.

Thomas Smith, who had used insulting language towards Mary Smith, his wife, was ordered to find sureties for his good behaviour for twelve months.

Two or three unimportant cases were dismissed, and one for embezzlement postponed.

DEATH FROM SCALDING.—A man named Thomas Sullivan, aged twenty years, died in the Infirmary on Thursday night, from the effects of injuries received by scalding under the following circumstances. The deceased was a scalloiler, and employed in the soap and candle factory of Mr. W. B. Allen, in Liverpool-street; part of his duty consisted in melting tallow. On Tuesday, 16th instant, he was engaged in attending to a pan of boiling water—the tallow being about two feet deep. In the afternoon he was standing on the brickwork surrounding the pan, with a long-handled scraper, with which he was stirring the tallow and scraping it from the bottom of the pan as it commenced to stick to the metal, when by some accident he lost his footing, and suddenly fell head foremost into the tallow. A scream attracted his fellow workmen to the spot, but before they could render assistance he had clambered out. By Mr. Allen's orders flour was brought, and the unfortunate young man being stripped of his clothes, the flour was thrown over the injured parts. He was taken to the Infirmary on the same evening, and gradually sank exhausted from the effects till Thursday night, when he expired. With regard to the cause of the accident, it appears that the deceased had no business on the brickwork around the pan, as there was a proper standing place erected by his side; but it is thought he stood on the brickwork so as to be able to scrape the bottom of the pan with greater facility. An inquest on the body was held at the coroner's office yesterday, and a verdict in accordance with the above statements returned.

DEATH FROM DROWNING.—A child named Edward Daly, aged three and-a-half years, was accidently drowned in a well on the premises occupied by his parents at Camperdown, on Thursday morning last. It appears that as soon as he was dressed in the morning, and before his mother was dressed, he went into the kitchen, and thence into the yard to chase or feed some chickens. When the child's mother went into the yard a few minutes afterwards, he was not be seen. On going to the well, she found the cover had been disturbed, and, on looking in, she saw the child's hat above the water, she immediately drew the body out, and with the assistance of some neighbours, tried to restore animation but without effect. Dr. Sedgewick was also sent for, on his arrival immediately afterwards he pronounced life extinct. The cover of the well was simply laid over the well, the hinges being broken; in running over it therefore, the child's weight on one corner of it might have caused it to turn up, and hence the accident. It is thought however, that the child was trying to dip out water for the chickens and fell in head foremost. An inquest on the body was held at the Grose Farm Inn, Camperdown, on the same evening, and a verdict of died from suffocation by drowning, was returned.

WESLEYAN MISSIONS.—The anniversary sermons and public meetings on behalf of the Sydney East Auxiliary of the Australasian Wesleyan Missionary Society, have taken place during the present week. Sermons were, on Sunday, preached in the forenoon and evening in the Pitt-street Chapel, by the Rev. Dr. Lang, and in the afternoon in the Wesleyan Chapel, Hunter-street, by the Rev. Daniel Fanning. On Monday evening, a public meeting was held at Bourke-street, of the proceedings of which, a report appeared in Tuesday's Herald. The meeting at Paddington was held on Tuesday evening, which, on account of the very unfavourable state of the weather, was but thinly attended. On Wednesday, the Woolloomooloo branch meeting was held, Mr. Cornthwaite in the chair; while the Waverley branch took place on Thursday evening. Mr. Dawson occupying the chair. The report and the resolutions were the same as those of the Bourke-street meeting, already reported; but such was the variety of speakers, that the meetings were thoroughly relieved from sameness or monotony. The speeches especially of the Rev. Thomas Adams, recently from the Friendly Islands, were painfully fraught with interest, and were listened to with the attention due to the statements of a man deeply imbued with the spirit of his work, and anxious to promote to the utmost, the arduous enterprise to which he has so long, so faithfully, and so successfully devoted himself. The collection realized at Bourke-street, £33 8s. 6d.; at Dowling-street, £6 14s. 9d.; at Paddington, £7 5s. 4d.; and at Waverley, £11 16d.; making a total of £58 12s. 8d.

MECHANISM AND ART.—We were pleased to inspect a beautiful and interesting specimen of mechanism and art at the shop of Messrs. Hogarth and Erichsen, yesterday. The design is a novel one, but quite worthy of the fertile fancy of these artists. It is a mantelpiece clock, and the centre is a large emu's egg. Into the egg a long search, succeeded in covering one of the face of the egg, the hands and pinions bearing the figures being of gold, encircled by small celestial pearls, which represent the minutes. On the one side of the egg is the figure of an emu, in oxidised silver, apparently in a state of great composure: on the other, in the same metal, the stalwart form of an aboriginal is waiting, glancing cautiously around, and mounting (in gold) uplifted and native dog by his side, ready to strike the fleet bird at the very moment of its appearance. The bird and the man are beautifully sculptured, and have a very fine effect. The plinth is of Australian marble, overlaid by a rough bed of colonial copper, interspersed with gold beneath a beautiful native grass tree in pure silver waves over the egg, and is exquisitely executed. As a curious piece of mechanism, as well as an artistic production, it is well worthy of inspection.

TRANSLATION.—A paragraph in yesterday's Herald, in reference to Captain Martindale's resignations, the word "obliged" was, by a typographical error, substituted for "alleged."—In the notice of the meeting of the Commission at St. James's Vestry, the name of Mr. W. Burton was inserted instead of Mr. W. Barker.

DIAGONICAL MISCHIEF.—On the starting of the early train on Wednesday morning with meat from the Collingwood Abattoirs, it was discovered that some mischievous person had placed a wooden rail across the line. Fortunately, although the engine had passed over the rail before it was discovered, no harm was done, neither the engine nor the train being thrown off the rails. Steps are being taken to discover the offender.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—On Monday evening last Reynolds' Domestic Drama of Mary Price was produced at the Royal Victoria Theatre, in which Mr. Richard Younge appeared in the original character of Mad Tom. The piece was followed by the favorite drama of Rosalvi, the Adventurer, in which Mr. Joseph Rayner sustained the part of Felix. On the evenings of Tuesday and Wednesday, the first of the two above named dramas was repeated, and on the first occasion, being the farce of the Lottery Ticket, and on the second, the Drama of Jessy Brown. On Thursday, Douglas Jerrold's great domestic drama of the Rent Day was produced—Martin Heywood being personated by Mr. Richard Younge, and Toby Heywood by Mr. Rayner. The farce of Buried Alive terminated the entertainment provided for that evening. The performances last night commenced with the new historical drama of Garibaldi, or the Hero of Palermo, and were concluded by the representation of that domestic drama, which had been played for three consecutive nights at the beginning of the week. The performances for this evening are Our Old House at Home: and the drama of Statues Strike Strong Jack. It is rumored that the management have engaged the services of that favorite and clever actress Miss Fanny Morgan, who is expected to come up from the Southern Province by the Wonga Wonga. Miss Morgan is said to be a very successful dramatic engagement.

UNION PRAYER MEETING.—The usual weekly union prayer meeting was held in the Wesleyan Chapel, York-street, yesterday evening. The attendance was numerous. The service was conducted by the Rev. R. Hartley, and several other ministers and laymen engaged in prayer.

SCHOOL OF ARTS DEBATING CLASS.—This class, in accordance with notice, met last night to discuss the question, "Are trades' unions useful, and ought they to be encouraged." Mr. Drury opened the debate in the affirmative, and was followed by several speakers on the same side—a great opposition being made by Mr. M'Intosh. The debate was adjourned till Friday next.

MASTER ANDERSON'S CONCERT.—This juvenile pianist, lately a student under Professor Bennett, at the Royal Academy of Music, London, will give his first concert in the large hall of the Sydney Mechanics' Institution, on Tuesday evening next, under the immediate patronage of His Excellency the Governor-General and Lady Denison. The programme is both varied and full, including pieces by Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Rossini, Schloesser, Weber, Dussek, Verdi, Balfe, and others. The principal feature will be the introduction of Master Anderson to an audience drawn from his native city, which will doubtless be a numerous one, by the fame he has acquired in the absence of the concert will also be increased by the presence of a military band, which is to perform two popular overtures, and selections from the opera of "Satanella." Madame Sara Flower, Signor Cecconi, Mr. F. Ellard, and Mr. D. Cullen will take part in the programme,—which has been judiciously arranged to suit the musical taste of the cognoscenti and those who prefer the lighter style of opera comique and ballad.

ORIENTAL PAINTING.—We have be been favoured with an inspection of an original painting from the studio of Mr. Noble; and we are on view at the shop of Mr. Bernasconi, carver and gilder, Pitt-street. It is about three feet in height, and five feet six inches in width, the figures being about one-fifth the natural size. The subject is "Mary anointing the feet of Jesus," and depicts the moment when the attention of the guests present has been attracted by the acts of the sinner, Mary Magdalene. The looks of supercilious pride, of astonishment, or of contempt depicted upon the various countenances are remarkably well pourtrayed, and form the chief characteristic of excellence in the picture. Of the two leading figures, however, we are bound to say that we scarcely know which to admire most. In the former being placed almost in a corner of the foreground, they lose much of the commanding position, which their place in the new historical event should secure for them, that position being usurped in the painting by a certainly well marked and highly characteristic figure which occupies the whole centre of the foreground; and in the latter, the figure of Jesus is completely wanting in that calm dignity which the paintings of the old masters have now led us to associate with the mundane form of the Saviour, whilst the countenance is inexpressive—almost inane. The Magdalene, too, is a spiritless, rosy damsel, who seems to be regarded in an amusement which she enjoys, and is very different from that weeping dishevelled figure which Holy Writ tells bathed the feet of Jesus with her tears, and dried them with the hairs of her head, prior to anointing them with the ointment. This, we consider, to be a fault in the treatment of the subject that we ought not to pass over. For the rest, we may say that the colouring is remarkably good, though as a whole rather too brilliant; the, however, may not strike the eye so forcibly when the colours have toned down a little with time. The groupings, also, are very effective, whilst the whole picture shows an amount of care and finish that show the artist to have been very earnest in his work. It is mounted in a very elegant frame, made expressly for it by Mr. Bernasconi.

SUPREME COURT.—Last day of third term, Saturday, 27th November.—Solicitors admitted attorneys: Motions generally: Rule nisi.—In the matter of the application of the Rev. George King for a prohibition (part heard).

APPREHENSION OF A SUPPOSED ABSCONDER.—A person named Carnegie, well-known (in the capacity of a theatrical and operatic agent) to the habitues and frequenters of the theatres and other places of resort in Sydney, was yesterday apprehended by Inspector Harrison, of the detective police, as a runaway prisoner of the Crown. It would seem that Captain Carnegie, as he is termed, arrived in this colony per Hashemy, and received in due course a ticket of leave for the Illawarra district, from whence he took his departure, some few years since, for California. He returned from the last mentioned place, as the acting agent of the Misses Nelson, and has ever since resided alternately in Sydney and Melbourne. It is stated that an accidental perusal of the Hashemy's indents at the office of the Inspector-General revealed the fact of a prisoner named Carnegie being at large, and resulted eventually in his capture at the Cafe, in George-street.

INQUEST AT LIVERPOOL.—Our correspondent writes:—On Tuesday, the 23rd instant, an inquest was held by Dr. Bell, coroner, at the house of Mr. John Hatfield, Bricklayers' Arms, on the body of Mr. Abraham, aged forty-seven years, the particulars of which are as follows:—Deceased resided on a farm of his father's, at Moorebank, and was returning with his wife and one child; they had to cross over the piles which are being driven in at the dam near the railway station, to repair the damage done to that strong-gale of the late floods. Deceased's wife took the child under her arm, and managed to get across in safety; she also cautioned him not to attempt it, as he was under the influence of drink, but that she would get the boat over for him to cross with. When Mrs. Meehan had placed her child on the opposite side, she turned to come over again, and seeing her husband on the piles called out to him to go back, but she had scarcely done so when deceased fell into the river, a distance of fourteen or fifteen feet. He came to the surface once or twice, and then sank to rise no more. Mr. S. Pearce, who had previously noticed deceased on the piles, remark that if he attempted to cross he would be drowned, followed him down to the river, but too late to prevent or save him, as he was half across the river when he saw him, and only, too the moment before he fell. The workmen had only just left the place, and there was no person near but the wife and deceased's child, and a little boy, so it was some time before assistance could be procured, but too late, as the body was not recovered until after it had been in the water for three-quarters of an hour. It was Mr. Pearce who recovered the body with the aid of a boat, and grappling irons. The death of this man adds another to the long list of victims to the effects of intemperance, and he has left a wife and five children totally unprovided for, in fact destitute, as he was only a labourer working on a small piece of ground of his father's, a poor man residing at Moorebank, who lost every thing by the late floods. The jury returned a verdict of "Death from drowning, having accidentally fallen into George's River while in a state of intoxication." The coroner, on the representation of Mr. Pearce and some of the jury, ordered a coffin to be provided at the public expense.

A FRIEND TO ANIMALS AWAKE.—We are informed that Mr. Augustus Morris, M.L.A., apparently under the impression that the amalgamation of the two hospitals at Deniliquin has actually taken place, has forwarded from Sydney a telegram, promising a donation of £100 to the amalgamated institution.—Southern Courier.

PARRAMATTA.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

POLICE OFFICE, Saturday, 20th October.—Before J. Byrnes, and G. B. Suttor, Esqrs.

THREE young men charged by the overseer of the Domain with furious riding, on the day of the Agricultural Show, were severally admonished and discharged.

Robert Milson appeared to answer a charge made by James Bellamy, of having, on the 9th ultimo, assaulted him in the exercise of his duty as one of the Commissioners of the Pennant Hills Parish Road—lately elected by the proprietors of land adjacent thereto, in accordance with the Act of Council 4th Victoria No. 12. It appeared that Mr. Bellamy, acting upon the surveyor's instructions, had proceeded to lay down the proper line of road, and on this day had entered, in company with the surveyor's assistant, upon enclosed land the property of Mr. Milson, for the purpose of carrying on the intended line, and driving stakes to mark it. This Mr. Milson resisted: asking him by whose authority he came there, following up the question by taking hold of him and forcibly ejecting him from the land.

Mr. Byrnes said that the case was a novel one, and of considerable importance, as likely to decide the powers of Commissioners under this Act; he would take time to consider a point which had arisen in the case during the progress of the case, and that, therefore, the Bench would reserve judgment upon it till Saturday, the 27th. Mr. Lyons appeared for the complainant, Mr. Gould for defendant.

BLACK TOWN.—ASSAULT.—A very serious assault was committed in the neighbourhood of Black Town, on Tuesday afternoon last. Two men named James Lawry and Isaac Baker, railway labourers, engaged upon the extension of the railway to Penrith, the former as contractor for the cutting, were discussing some matter in which they differed; a quarrel ensued—blows were exchanged—when Lawry raised his pick, a large sized and heavy one, and struck Baker upon the head, felling him senseless to the earth. Medical attendance was sent for, and the unfortunate man conveyed to his tent, where, although now sensible, he lies in a most dangerous state. In the meantime, to doubt, horror struck at his rash act, Lawry absconded. A warrant has been issued for his apprehension; and the police are all out in search, but he has not yet been seen or heard of.

RIDLEY'S improved ANTI-CORROSION PAINT, for painting and preserving iron ships, and all kinds of external wood, iron, plaster, stucco, and brickwork.—The superiority of the above article over every other description of paint for the preservation of outbuildings, &c., has been evinced by the extraordinary increased demand which the manufacturers have of late had for it. Two coats of the anti-corrosion will render wood or iron work, however exposed, impervious to the weather. It is an effectual remedy for preventing the leakage of walls of a porous quality, and will be found one of the cheapest and best preparations ever used for weatherboard buildings, verandahs, sashes of all kinds, tiles to represent slates, and gutters, as it equally resists the effects of heat and moisture. It is the best possible covering for stucco, plaster, and brick work; gates, iron ships, palisading, and hurdles; wood for cases, carts, and other agricultural implements. The colour most frequently used presents the appearance of fine Portland stone; but other colours may be used. W. G. SPRIGG and CO., Wynyard-square, Sydney; and SPRIGG, ADDISON, and CO., Melbourne, agents for the Australian colonies.

The cattle are remarkably quiet—so much so that they can be mustered in a few weeks even in the middle of winter. To any enterprising party who would reside on and work the station, there is a certain independence to be made in a few years.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH.

To Merchants, Capitalists, Speculators, andothers. Important Sale.

ROSLYN HALL.

That magnificent and truly elegant mansion, the seat of Thomas Barker, Esq., together with the whole of the HIGHLY IMPROVED GROUNDS, comprising about EIGHT ACRES IN THE CITY, situate in one of the most valuable localities on the beautiful HEIGHTS OF DARLINGHURST, and having considerable frontage to MACLEAY and WILLIAM STREETS, between the grounds of Kellet House, the property of S. A. Donaldson, Esq., Barncleuth, the property of Henry Moore, Esq., and the extensive estate of William S. Macleay, Esq.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from Thomas Barker, Esq., in consequence of his retirement into the country, to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 29th OCTOBER, at 11 o'clock,

That valuable city mansion, known as

ROSLYN HALL,
MACLEAY-STREET, DARLINGHURST,

including the whole of the extensive, improved grounds, containing about eight acres, fronting MACLEAY AND WILLIAM-STREETS.

ROSLYN HALL is approached from the Macleay-street frontage, winding through a noble carriage drive entered by handsome iron gates, to a beautiful verdant lawn in front, and mature shrubberies and ornamental trees on either side.

It is massively and most faithfully built of cut stone, the front course being laid in putty, so that the joints are scarcely perceptible, giving the outside a smooth polished appearance. The style of architecture is modern. The upper windows outside are adorned with neat iron balconies, and on the west and north side of the house is a flagged terrace ornamented with an iron balustrade surmounted with classical vases. From this terrace is the main entrance to the hall, which is 50 feet in length by 12 feet in width, out of which and the back lobby the following apartments are entered:—

Dining-room 30 feet by 20 feet; breakfast-room 20 feet x 17 feet; bedroom 16 feet x 20 feet; dressing-room and closet with water laid on, butler's pantry, and housekeeper's-room, china closets and bath-room.

The upper floor is approached by a wide spiral staircase, leading to a spacious corridor 50 feet x 20 feet, lighted at each end by large windows, and in the centre, over the staircase, by a skylight dome, fitted with richly-painted glass. From the corridor, the visitor enters into the magnificent drawing or reception room, 50 feet by 20 feet, and into two large bedrooms, 20 feet by 16 feet, each of which have dressing-rooms, baths, and closets, with water laid on. On the second floor are two bedrooms, with roomy passage, leading to a leaded platform on the roof.

The basement is built of solid masonry, and contains large room 30 feet by 20 feet, servants' room, wine cellar 20 feet by 15 feet, furnished with stone bins, dairy, store, fuel-house, &c. From this story a flagged courtyard is entered on, leading by a covered way to the detached outbuildings, also built of stone, and containing kitchen, 35 feet by 17 feet, fitted with large ovens, cooking and baking ranges, and boilers supplying constant hot water, scullery, laundry 24 feet by 17 feet, and servant's apartments above.

The stabling at the rear is approached by a side road from Macleay-street. It consists of a large coach-house, on each side of which are two stables, with flagged floors, containing severally three well-finished stalls; and in one is a loose box for two horses.

The whole premises are abundantly supplied with water from a large deep well and reservoir, into which the roof water is conducted, and from which, by pump, the water is forced into cisterns, supplying the bedrooms, bathrooms, and a capitally contrived dripping stone and filter in the basement.

Roslyn Hall is a commodious well-finished family mansion, with fine lofty apartments and superior accommodation. The elevation is handsome and bold, and the interior corresponds with its outward appearance, being at once beautiful and highly embellished, yet tastefully and elegantly finished. Nothing can exceed the extreme beauty of the superb and chastely painted and gilded fresco decorations of the magnificent drawing and dining rooms, which are quite a study of artistic elegance, and reflect great credit to the designer.

The architraves, freezes, skirting boards, doors, &c., are all of picked cedar, highly polished, and beautifully carved, and no expense has been spared in rendering the whole, for completeness, finish, and luxurious convenience, a princely and perfect model mansion.

The GROUNDS, about eight acres in area, extend from Macleay-street to William-street North, to both of which streets they have an unusually extensive frontage.

They are surrounded by the estates of Messrs. Macleay, Moore, and Donaldson.

They comprise lawns, shrubberies of exuberant vegetation, abounding with overshadowing trees and fine evergreens rich with foliage, verdant parterres redolent with sunny flowers and rare plants, and orchard of the choicest fruits, the whole speaking eloquently of massive Sylvan beauty.

The position of Roslyn Hall is worthy of its fame; standing on an eminence, overlooking the seats and grounds of the neighbouring properties, a more picturesque spot cannot be imagined. The views from it exceed in extent or beauty, anything that can be obtained from any position in the city, comprising the whole of Sydney and environs, the harbour from the Parramatta River to the Heads, the North Shore lying in liquid foreground; forming one continuous panorama of noble views, far and wide, the inland scenery giving an air of quiet rural repose and high degree of beauty to the prospect.

☞ In bringing this valuable estate into the market for positive sale, in consequence of the proprietor leaving Sydney, Richardson and Wrench need scarcely dwell on the advantages to be derived from its purchase, as the sale offers inducements, rarely, if ever, met with in this colony, either to the merchant or capitalist seeking a family seat, or to the speculator with a view to a subdivision. For the latter purpose the estate is very eligible, as from its superior position and large frontage to the main streets, a great portion of the grounds could be subdivided and sold in building allotments—which would be bought with avidity at high rates, and would not, in the least, interfere with the mansion and immediate grounds. They, therefore, with pleasure and without further remarks, beg to direct the attention of all to this sale, as affording a means of safely investing capital, with a large prospective advantage, and at the same time, securing a family residence and estate unequalled for beauty of position, or value, by any other property in the colonies.

PLAN of the grounds, and a faithfully executed sketch of the house, on view at the Rooms, where also CARDS to view can be obtained.

Terms, liberal.

PETERSHAM RAILWAY STATION.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 12th November, at 11 o'clock.

The following valuable properties, situate at the PETERSHAM RAILWAY STATION:—

LOT 1.—All that parcel of land, being portion of block 3A Petersham Estate, containing by admeasurement 6 acres 6 perches, more or less, bounded on the west by the new Cook's River Road, 1 chain 50 links; on the south by the land reserved for the railway to a road 1 chain wide; on the east by that road, 4 chains 70 links, dividing it from block 2A; on the north by a line, 3 chains 10 links, dividing it from Yabsley's other purchases; again on the east by a line 1 chain 13 links; again on the north by a line, 14 chains 24 links, to point of commencement, together with all the improvements thereon, comprising TERMINUS COTTAGE, built of brick, containing verandah, seven rooms on the ground floor, and two attic rooms, laundry, built of wood, ovens, stable and coach-house, well of water, &c. TWO DWELLING HOUSES, built of brick on stone foundations, containing each verandah, hall, balcony, five rooms, cellars, detached kitchen, stable, &c. These houses are well built and finished.

The down pipes from the roof lead into large cemented water reservoirs, containing each 2500 gallons, and the premises are fitted with every convenience required for suburban family residences.

LOT 2.—All that piece of land adjoining lot 1 and the property of W. O. Wentworth, Esq., containing by admeasurement 9 acres 2 roods and 8 perches, more or less, having extensive frontage to Palace-street, and with wide entrance to the Parramatta Road.

☞ This valuable suburban property is well known as formerly belonging to the late Mr. Yabsley. The whole is enclosed, and lot 1 is divided into orchard, cultivation, and grass paddocks, which are bounded on wide side by a fresh water creek.

The locality is one of the most delightful on the railway line, being distant from the city only about three miles, and nearly opposite the Petersham Railway Station.

There is now no land near this station to be obtained, except in building lots, some of which, opposite the above blocks, realised as high as £4 17s. 6d. per foot, with a depth of only 100 feet.

After leaving with each of the houses sufficient grounds, there will remain a large area of land, which could be advantageously subdivided into villa sites, for which no other position in the suburbs is so well adapted.

The property will be sold as above described, or in lots to suit purchasers.

FOR POSITIVE SALE BY ORDER OF THE MORTGAGEE.

ECHO POINT,
MIDDLE HARBOUR.

Romantically situated homestead, with extensive full-bearing orangery and orchard, well known as the property of Mr. J. M. BATE.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the mortgagee, to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 12th November, at 11 o'clock,

All that parcel of land situate at Middle Harbour, containing about 20 acres, about half a mile from Curtis' application for 31 acres, Manly Cove, bounded on the south-west by a line commencing at a marked tree on a fresh water creek, about five chains from its intersection with Middle Harbour, 21 chains 70 links to Middle Harbour, on the north and east by the water of Middle Harbour, and partly by the fresh water creek aforesaid, upon which are the following improvements:—

A capital cottage residence, with numerous out-offices, and a prosperous full-bearing orchard and orangery, of about 12 acres, cleared, timbered, and enclosed. Nearly 300 orange trees, the greater part of which are full grown and bearing, and there is a choice collection of other fruit trees, which, with proper arrangement, will yield an annual income of £300 or upwards.

This property is approached either by water by Middle Harbour, or by St. Leonard's, North Shore, from which it is distant about five miles by a good road.

The orangery and orchard is one of the finest and most prolific in the district—a considerable amount of both labour and capital having been expended to bring it to its present state of perfection.

The romantic loveliness of the situation must be seen to be appreciated—being one of those delightful jutting headlands, surrounded by wild, bold, majestic scenery, softened by the waters of Middle Harbour.

The land is well watered at the back by a cool, constantly-flowing creek of fresh water; and it may be mentioned that on the unimproved portion of the property, and in the neighbourhood, are to be found unmistakable indications of an extensive coal-field.

☞ An inspection of this beautiful property is earnestly invited, for it can be confidently asserted that in no other portion of the suburbs of the city could a more attractive retreat be found, or one possessing so many natural as well as lucrative advantages.

BY ORDER OF THE MORTGAGEES.

ORAN PARK.

An AGRICULTURAL and GRAZING ESTATE, containing about 2000 ACRES, situate at the junction of the Cobbity and Great North Roads, about ten miles from the CAMPBELLTOWN RAILWAY STATION, together with the first-class FAMILY RESIDENCE, recently completed; and other extensive improvements.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the mortgagees to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 5th November, at 11 o'clock,

That well-known country estate, ORAN PARK, containing about 2000 acres of capital well-watered agricultural and grazing land, situate at the junction of the Cobbity and Great North Roads, near Narellan, about ten miles from Campbelltown, and fifteen miles from Liverpool, adjoining, or in the immediate neighbourhood of MARYLAND, the seat of Thomas Barker, Esq., Harrington Park, Mollsmain, Wivenhoe, and other first-class properties.

A large proportion of the estate is good agricultural land, the whole is enclosed and subdivided into paddocks, and about 200 acres are cleared, stumped, and now under crop.

ORAN PARK HOUSE, which has just been completed, is a substantial and commodious family residence, built of brick, on massive stone foundation, with wide verandah and covered balcony, supported by lofty iron columns in front, and contains 8 good rooms on the ground and first floors, with kitchens, &c., in the basement, and detached laundry, servants' rooms, &c., at the rear.

There are also extensive out-offices, comprising large brick-built stable and coach-house, barn, labourers' houses, stockyards, and everything complete for the working of a large establishment.

The house is well supplied with water by a large underground reservoir, into which the down pipes from the roof are directed; and the estate is otherwise watered with a never-failing branch of the South Creek and deep ponds.

These improvements have been made at a considerable cost, and the newly-erected house has been completed, both as regards style and convenience, superior to the usual finish of country residences.

☞ To parties seeking a country estate, upon which all the necessary improvements have been finished at a great outlay, the sale of Oran Park affords a most favourable opportunity for investing to advantage.

It is surrounded by first-class properties, and the locality, for convenience of position, cannot be excelled, being at the junction of two main roads near the great Southern road, and only about ten miles from Campbelltown Railway station.

The sale being positive by order of the mortgagees, the special attention of capitalists, merchants, squatters, and others is directed to this valuable and beautifully situated country seat, and an inspection invited prior to the sale.

THE OLD HOUSE IN PARK-STREET.—Its Apology to their worthy solicitor, and other gentlemen referred to in their last:—

We've got in a mess, and we have not a doubt of it
Shall get further into it, trying to get out of it.

To get out of the mud and get into the mire—
To get out of the frying-pan into the fire;—
To get out of the suds, and get into hot water,
To get tied up for life to another man's daughter—
Are trifles, compared with the tarnation mess
He gets into, who puts a man's name in the Press.

Our worthy solicitor needs not to frown,
Or logic but erred in a little pronoun;
But a lawyer, of course, knows the pith and the power
Of the pronoun spelt "his," and the pronoun spelt "our,"
In our last, for the first, if he'll but read the latter
He will own with ourselves, there is nothing the matter.

And as for the Sheriff—his round happy face
Would make a saint smile in the midst of his grace.
The rest of the courtiers have sense—and will shew it,
To take no offence from a light-hearted poet.
